SUMMARY.

The English newspapers regard Count von Hertling's speech in reply to the Allies' terms as insolent, bombastic, and arrogant.

The wily Hun's idea, they say, is to negotiate with each enemy separately. The speech "bangs the door in the face of peace."

Lord Robert Cecil (Under-Secretary for War) said the German Chancellor's speech was very warlike.

The Chancellor suggested that Britain should abandon Gibraltar, Malta, Hongkong, the Falkland, and other naval strongholds.

The Belgian question could only be settled, he declared, at the peace negotiations.

Germany, he said, had never demanded the incorporation of Belgian territory. There could not be any talk of ceding Alsace-Lorraine.

If our enemies forced us to continue the war, Count von Hertling declared, they must take the consequences.

Count Czernin, in the Reichsrath, said he did not intend to demand Russian territory nor any indemnity.

When peace with Russia is secured, a world peace cannot be prevented, he remarked.

The United Press correspondent at Rome says the Vatican regards Count Czernin's speech as a positive step towards peace.

Lord Curzon, at Cardiff, said our forces in the West were preparing for the greatest attack the enemy had yet delivered.

The spirit of the men was excellent, and there were enough munitions and to spare.

British aeroplanes have bombed large railway sidings at Courtrai and billets at Roulers.

There has been hard air fighting all along the line, which resulted greatly in favour of the British.

The German artillery is active in the region of Havrincourt and Poelcapelle, and in the Scarpe Valley.

A French communique reports a lively artillery duel at Caurieres Wood, where an enemy raid failed.

The American army in France is now a formidable war machine, ready to assist the Allies.

The Americans have been in action on the French front on several occasions during the past week.

According to the "Daily Chronicle," it is persistently rumoured that there are serious disorders in Berlin.

A general strike commenced at Budapest on the morning of the 18th.

There were great demonstrations over the whole of Austria-Hungary.

Soviet organisations have been formed in Vienna and Budapest. A big strike has begun at Warsaw.

Russian officers state that the Austrian army is demoralised, and that there is a complete collapse of discipline.

The "Daily Chronicle's" correspondent at telegraphs: The Bolsheviks are tottering among the ruin they have helped to create.

The working classes are exhibiting a strong revulsion of feeling against the Bolsheviks.

The Brest-Litovsk peace negotiations have been postponed, and will be resumed on January 29.

It is reported that Austria has declared her readiness to conclude peace without Germany.

The Bolsheviks are contemplating a formal declaration of war against the Ukranians.

It is reported that Bolshevik troops have surrounded Kieff.

It is considered in naval circles that the Goeben is certain to become a total loss.

The Labour Congress at Nottingham has demanded the withdrawal of conscription after the war.

Lord Rhondda has informed the United States Food Administrator that the responsibility of the food problem lies with America.

Mr. Hoover replied: We will export every grain America saves from her normal consumption.

The British are aiming a new blow against Turkey.

They are said to be advancing towards Erzerum, with the object of attacking in the north.

General Allenby will make a simultaneous offensive in Palestine.

The Queensland Government has voted £1000 for relief work in Mackay and the district.

Fifty tons of foodstuffs have been shipped at Brisbane by the Aramac.

Bowen reports that the Home Hill and Don bridges have been carried away, and the Elliott bridge is partly wrecked.

The flood water is 25 feet over the old bridge at Sellheim, and is rising fast.

A steamer had a remarkable escape from being wrecked at the Percy Islands.

Alarming reports are current regarding the position at Emerald. The Nogoa River rose 42 feet.

There is a scarcity of food at Mount Morgan. The supply of butter has run out, and stocks of sugar and flour are low.

Hoisting the flag at the Phillip Statue and the meeting of the Pioneers were interesting features of the Anniversary Day celebrations.

Mr. R. J. Black, M.L.C., the president, said he would like to see a National Historical Museum established in Sydney.

The annual commemoration of the birthday of Robert Burns was celebrated on Saturday.

There was a demonstration at the poet's statue in the Domain, with a concert in the Protestant Hall at night.

The A.J.C. Aniversary meeting at Randwick Racecourse was attended by over 27,000 people. Three favourites were successful.

Four sailing and two rowing events were decided at the Anniversary Regatta on Saturday.

There was no flagship, and the races started and finished at Clark Island.

The opening rounds of the State single-handed championship in bowls were played on Saturday on 15 of the metropolitan greens.

In the War Chest cricket match the Inter-state team's first innings closed for 413.

The International eleven replied with 276, of which M. A. Noble scored 106 not out, and S. E. Gregory 58.

The match financially was a success, the total proceeds amounting to £159/13/.

Robberies from the Coogee surf sheds and the baths at Clifton Gardens, have been reported to the police.

It is probable that early action will be taken to restrict the export of foodstuffs from Britain to Australia.

An important development in the dispute between the doctors and the lodges has taken place in the shape of Federal intervention.

Mr. Hughes urged that the resignation of the medical men should be held over for a month.

Mr. Deakin, who was reported to be in a critical state of health, has improved.

The South Sydney Model Band won the A grade championship of Australia, defeating Newtown by one point.

The annual conference of the New South Wales section of the Boy Scouts' Association was held on Saturday.

Steps were taken towards forming a Federal council for Australia.

Returned soldiers are to be urged to take an interest in the Boy Scout movement.

The funeral of the late Brigadier-General Sir Samuel Pethebridge took place at Box Hill (Vic.) with full military honours.

Serious damage to timber and machinery was caused by a fire at the premises of the Ballarat box factory.

Special services were held at Scots Church yesterday in connection with an effort to clear off the church liability.

The outlook in regard to the pastures and lambing in the south-western districts is said to be very good.

A Swiss seaman was drowned in the surf at Coogee yesterday.

Cloncurry reports that a fire has occurred in the Consols mine at the 840ft level.

Mr. Mackinnon told a conference of recruiting officers that he had hopes of better things in the near future.

Forecast.—Sultry generally, with some scattered rain and thunder; sea still disturbed on the coast; a cool change approaching the southern districts.

PITT, MARKET, AND GEORGE STREETS.

EVEN PEOPLE WHO DON'T BELIEVE IN SIGNS

may be deceived by the inscription "Welcome" on a door mat.

Many people have been deceived by the words

"REX"
CAMP PIE

into believing that it is a combination of Pastry and Meat. There is no crust about it, nor any crusty feeling after eating it.

"Rex" Camp Pie is scientifically prepared from the choicest morsels of fresh meat. It is all meat compounded and cooked to a ravishing toothsomeness that makes it "Welcome" at your table.

It saves time and trouble for the housewife, as it is sold ready to serve. A salad of Tomatoes, Beetroot, Cucumber, or Lettuce, although not actually essential, will enhance the flavour.

Enough in a tin for 5 healthy appetites. Slice this for sandwiches.
All Grocers sell it.

FOY'S SUMMER FAIR,

SECOND WEEK.

FOY'S SUMMER FAIR.

We enter the Second Week of this remarkable Fair to-day. The past week witnessed a unique record of public enthusiasm and sales, our customers appreciating the fact that we kept faith with them in our usual generous fashion.

To-day there will be no diminution of our willingness to provide bargains, and we shall give further and ample proof that

THERE'S NO TIME
LIKE THE PRESENT

FOR EVERY "FAIR" ECONOMIST.

"Fairings" are bargains in every section of our Three Establishments—The Piazza, Furniture Showrooms, and Hardware Building—whilst in the savings are just what Sydney was waiting for.

FASHIONABLE APPAREL

Indeed, the potent influence of

is causing us literally to empty our fixtures of all "wanted" goods.

Certainly there's an end to all good things, and we repeat our warning again to-day that

DELAY SPELLS FOLLY

MEETINGS.

THE BROKEN HILL PROPRIETARY COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOTICE is hereby given that pursuant to the resolution for adjournment passed at the 64th Ordinary General Meeting of the Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Limited, held on the 31st day of August, 1917, the Board of Directors has appointed that the Adjourned MEETING shall be held on FRIDAY, the 22nd day of February, 1918, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, in the Board Room, at the Registered Office of the Company, Equitable-building, 320 Collins-street, in the City of Melbourne.

NOTICE is also hereby given that the 65th Half-yearly Ordinary General MEETING of the Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Limited, will be held in the Board Room, Equitable-building aforesaid, at 3.15 o'clock in the afternoon, or so soon afterwards as the abovementioned meeting shall be concluded, for the purpose of transacting the Ordinary Half-yearly Business, and considering, and if thought fit passing (with or without modification), the subjoined Special Resolution, which will be proposed as an Extraordinary Resolution:—

ORDINARY BUSINESS.

1. To receive the Directors' Report and Balance-sheet.
2. To elect two Directors in the place of Hon. D. E. McBryde and Mr. H. G. Darling, who retire in accordance with the Articles of Association, but are eligible and offer themselves for re-election.
3. To consider any business due notice of which shall have been previously given in accordance with Article No. 49.
4. To transact any other Ordinary Half-yearly business.

SPECIAL BUSINESS.
EXTRAORDINARY RESOLUTION:—

That the Articles of Association be altered in manner following:—

(a) In Article 43 the words "Two General Meetings" shall be struck out and the words "A General Meeting" substituted therefor, and the words "Months of February and August" struck out and the words "Month of August" substituted therefor.

(b) In Article 44 the words "The abovementioned General Meetings shall be called Ordinary Meetings" shall be struck out and the words "The abovementioned General Meeting shall be called an Ordinary Meeting" substituted therefor.

(c) In Article 51 the words "Or if at any Meeting he shall not" shall be struck out and the words "Or Vice-Chairman or if at any meeting neither the Chairman nor the Vice-Chairman shall" be substituted therefor.

(d) In Article 52 the words "At the first Ordinary Meeting to be held in the year 1915 and at every succeeding first Ordinary" shall be struck out and the words "At the Ordinary Meeting to be held in the year 1919 and at every succeeding Ordinary" substituted therefor.

(e) In Article 53 the words "month of February, 1915" shall be struck out and the words "year 1919" substituted therefor, and the words "No Directors shall retire at the Ordinary Meeting to be held in August, 1918, and the Directors to retire at the Ordinary Meeting to be held in August, 1919, shall be deemed to have been elected, and hold office until that date," shall be added at the end of such Article.

(f) In Article 126 all the words after the word "made" in the fifth line shall be struck out and the words "up to and inclusive of the preceding 31st day of May" substituted therefor.

(g) In Article 128 the word "Twice" shall be struck out and the word "Once" substituted therefor.

(h) In Article 129 the words "in the month of August" in the second line, and the words "in such month" in the fourth line, shall be struck out.

Should such Extraordinary Resolution be passed (with or without modification) by the requisite majority, it will be submitted for confirmation as a Special Resolution to a Further Extraordinary General Meeting; and such Meeting will be held on FRIDAY, the 15th day of March, 1918, in the Board Room at the said Registered Office of the Company, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of considering, and if thought fit confirming, such resolution as a Special Resolution accordingly.

Dated at Equitable-building, 320 Collins-street, Melbourne, this 11th day of January, 1918.
By Order of the Board.
F. M. DICKENSON, Secretary.

THE BROKEN HILL PROPRIETARY COMPANY, LIMITED.

320 Collins-street, Melbourne.

The Directors have decided to recommend to Shareholders that the accounts of the Company be issued once a year only, instead of half-yearly, as has been the custom hitherto, and with a view of carrying this into effect it is necessary to make certain alterations in the Articles of Association.

The alterations required are fully set out below, and at the Half-yearly Meeting to be held on 22nd February, 1918, a Special Resolution will be submitted embodying the alterations.

The Directors have only arrived at this decision after mature consideration, having regard to the fact that the Company has now entered upon a more commercial and industrial career than was the case when it was simply engaged in mining and metallurgical operations.

The time and expense and trouble involved in preparing the necessary documents and returns for half-yearly accounts is very great indeed, and the Directors strongly urge Shareholders to give the necessary authority to carry the recommendation into effect.

The Articles affected, showing the alterations (in "——"), and additions required (in capitals) are set out herewith:—

43.—"Two" A General "Meetings" MEETING shall be held in each year, at such time and place as may be prescribed by the Company in General Meeting, and if no other time or place is prescribed, then in the "months" MONTH of "February and" August, at such time and place as may be determined by the Directors.

44.—The above-mentioned General "Meetings" MEETING shall be called AN Ordinary "Meetings" MEETING, and all other meetings of the Company shall be called Extraordinary Meetings.

51.—The Chairman (if any) of the Directors, or in his absence the Vice-Chairman (if any) shall be entitled to take the chair at every meeting, or if there be no Chairman "or if at any meeting he shall not" OR VICE-CHAIRMAN, OR IF AT ANY MEETING NEITHER THE CHAIRMAN NOR THE VICE-CHAIRMAN SHALL be present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding such meeting, the members present shall choose another Director as Chairman, and if no Director be present, or if all the Directors present decline to take the chair, then the members present shall choose one of their number to be Chairman.

52.—At the "first ordinary" ORDINARY Meeting to be held in the year "1915" 1919, and at every succeeding "first ordinary" ORDINARY Meeting to be held in each year, if the number of Directors is seven or less, then two shall retire, but if more than seven, then one-third of the Directors for the time being, or if their number is not a multiple of three, then the number nearest to but not exceeding one-third shall retire from office. A retiring Director shall retain office until the termination of the meeting at which his successor is elected.

53.—The two or one-third or other nearest number of the Directors to retire at the Ordinary Meeting to be held in the "month of February, 1915" YEAR 1919, shall be the two or one-third or nearest number who have been longest in office, and in every subsequent year the two or one-third or other nearest number who have been longest in office shall retire. As between two or more who have been in office an equal length of time the Director to retire shall in default of agreement between them be determined by lot. The length of time a Director has been in office shall be computed from his last election or appointment where he has previously vacated office. A retiring Director shall be eligible for re-election. NO DIRECTORS SHALL RETIRE AT THE ORDINARY MEETING TO BE HELD IN AUGUST, 1918, AND THE DIRECTORS TO RETIRE AT THE ORDINARY MEETING TO BE HELD IN AUGUST, 1919, SHALL BE DEEMED TO HAVE BEEN ELECTED, AND HOLD OFFICE UNTIL THAT DATE.

126.—At the Ordinary Meeting in every year the Directors shall lay before the Company a profit and loss account and a balance-sheet containing a summary of the assets and liabilities of the Company made "for the meeting to be held in the month of February, up to and inclusive of the preceding 30th day of November, and for the meeting to be held in the month of August, up to and inclusive of the preceding 31st day of May," UP TO AND INCLUSIVE OF THE PRECEDING 31st DAY OF MAY.

128.—"Twice" ONCE in every year the accounts of the Company shall be examined and the correctness of the profit and loss accounts and balance sheets ascertained by one or more auditor or auditors.

129. The Company at the Ordinary Meeting held "in the month of August" in each year shall appoint an auditor or auditors to hold office until the next Ordinary Meeting to be held "in such month" in the following year, and the following provisions shall have effect, that is to say:—

By Order of the Board.
F. M. DICKENSON, Secretary.
Melbourne, 11th January, 1918.

FEDERATED CLOTHING TRADES.—A SPECIAL MEETING of the FEDERATED CLOTHING TRADES will be held TO-NIGHT, in the Trades Hall, Goulburn-street, at 8 o'clock, Room 48. Business: Balance-sheet, Nomination of Officers, etc. Federal Secretary will be in attendance.
J. B. CROMBIE, General Secretary.

THE RUSSIAN COLONIAL COMMITTEE cordially invite all Russian subjects to attend a SPECIAL MEETING, to discuss important business, in the Socialist Hall, 309 Pitt-street, Sydney, on TUESDAY, 29th instant, at 8 p.m. sharp.

MEDICAL, CHEMICALS, ETC.

A TRIUMPH OF DENTAL SURGERY. That's what scores of patients say who have had teeth filled by my wonderful painless method. It is a triumph of science indeed to think that those sensitive teeth of yours can be drilled and filled without causing you the slightest pain. Yet it is being done every day by me. I have an apparatus (the only one in Sydney) which makes possible—ABSOLUTELY PAINLESS FILLINGS. The surest proof of its success is to ask any of my patients, and I invite you to do this. You gain in two ways by allowing me to fill your teeth by this method. You are relieved from every bit of pain, and I can do the work better because you are able to sit quietly at ease. There are no harmful effects—any system is perfectly safe for all ages. REALLY PAINLESS EXTRACTIONS, £5 GIVEN IF YOU FEEL EVEN A TWINGE. So positive am I that I can extract teeth really without pain that I make an open offer of £5 should you feel a single twinge even with a very bad tooth. Here again I have an exclusive method, perfected during my nineteen years of dental practice. See me to-day, and get the benefit of the most up-to-date dental methods in Sydney. My prices are reasonable, frequently less than others charge for "painful" work. Consultations free. Open till 6 p.m. Fridays (Sats. included), until 9 p.m. Fridays. Half-holiday Wednesday. SECONDARY SCHOOLS.

LEAVING CERTIFICATE.

EXAMINATION RESULTS.

The results of the leaving certificate examination (marking the completion of the secondary school course) are announced below. This is the fifth examination held for the leaving certificate, and the number of candidates has increased from 156 at the first test in 1913 to 933 at the examination last month. Of these 933 candidates, 737, or 78.9 per cent., passed. Excluding private study candidates and those from non-registered schools, the percentage of passes was 81. In 1916 866 candidates presented themselves, of whom 690 passed.

Candidates for exhibitions who have qualified for matriculation at the leaving certificate examination are advised by the department to write for application forms to the Warden and Registrar of the University. The result of the Public Service competition will be announced later. The honours list will be published to-morrow.

In the following list the schools from which students were prepared and the names of the candidates are arranged alphabetically. The numbers following the names indicate the subjects in which each candidate passed in accordance with the following statement:—(1) English, (2) Latin, (3) French, (4) German, (5) mathematics I., (6) mathematics II., (7) mechanics, (8) modern history, (9) ancient history, (10) physics, (11) chemistry, (12) botany, (13) geology, (14) geography, (15) art, (16) music, (17) English and geography for engineering matriculation, (18) business principles, (19) economics, (20) physiology, (21) zoology, (22) Greek, (23) dressmaking, (24) technical drawing, (25) shorthand.

The letter "H" signifies honours, "A" first-class pass, "B" second-class pass, and "L" a pass at the lower standard.

The sign (x) denotes that the candidate has gained honours in mathematics.

FIRE IN A MINE.

BRISBANE, Saturday.

Cloncurry reported that a fire had occurred in the Consuls mine at the 540ft level. This is serious, the main body of ore being attacked. It is also serious for Mount Elliott. The mining inspector is now at the mine.

"THE WILLOW TREE."

If there were any readers [illegible] Saturday night's crowded audience at the Criterion Theatre the memory of "[illegible] Laugh" must have flashed [illegible] the new play was brought to a sudden and perplexing finish by an unrehearsed "[illegible]sion" and hurried exit on the part of the leading lady. Miss Kathleen Macdonell appeared to have been overcome by anger too deep for words. Flinging from her hand [illegible] a small "magic mirror," which [illegible] have been used in the final climax of the play, the gifted young actress [illegible] to have bolted off the stage with a gesture expressing uncontrollable "temperature" in the artistic sense rather than annoyance or disappointment. In all probability Miss Macdonell on Saturday was a victim to acute nervous [illegible] the result of long rehearsals and [illegible] effort in other characters.

In this regard it must be [illegible] that there was little in the [illegible] the audience to justify the abrupt [illegible] of the play just before the intended [illegible] The Criterion Theatre has rarely [illegible] better-behaved holiday night audience, "the laughter of the gods" deliberately [illegible]ed in nearly every scene of "The Willow Tree" the gallery girls could not [illegible] if two or three times they laughed in the wrong place.

Harry J. Benrimo and Harrison [illegible] have turned an ancient Japanese [illegible] love and loyalty into a twentieth-century romance. Passing as a fantastic mystery, "The Willow Tree," like "Every Woman," [illegible] overloaded with realism. In its general characteristics the new production may be described as a mixture of "Pygmalion and Galatea" and "Madame Butterfly." The principal happening in the Japanese garden is the "awakening to life" of the image of an old-time Japanese Princess. [illegible] Hamilton, the purchaser of the work of art, a young Englishman who is "half Japanese in dress and style, is told by the image-maker that if he places a small mirror in the bosom of the inanimate figure there will be a miraculous change. The mirror does its work, and the Lotus-Eater falls in love with the "living image," blocking out his affection his English sweetheart, Mary Temple. She arrives unexpectedly from London, and, after a reconciliation, [illegible] Hamilton that his place is in the great war fighting with his countrymen. More passionate and more persuasive than the English girl, and making the sacrifice of [illegible] love and liberty so that the soul of the man she adores may be saved from dishonour, the "Willow Branch Princess" points out the path of duty. "Go and fight for [illegible] England, George King," says the Princess as she prepares to return to the heart of the Willow Tree as in the legend of Old Japan.

The actors in "The Willow Tree" had reason to complain that they were "[illegible] cabined, and confined" within the walls of a little garden-house. There was no outdoors action, and it must be confessed that the workshop of "the image" had become monotonous even before the third act was reached. In this condition of things Miss Kathleen Macdonell had no easy task. "Honourably glad" when first kissed in "this golden world of happiness" the young actress did all that it was possible for her to do to be "convincing" as the second-time-on-earth Princess. The artless simplicity of the created Japanese girl was cleverly simulated, and the amorousness of the supernatural [illegible] amazingly conventional being was [illegible] by reasoned restraint. By way of contrast, and discarding her black wig, Miss Macdonell made Mary Temple a dashing and attractive English type in the last act. Placed at a greater disadvantage than the leading lady, Mr. Charles Waldron as Edward Hamilton contrived to put a surprising amount of "[illegible]" into the part of the day-dreamer and devoted lover who boasts that he has cut himself off from dull Western ways and artificial Western manners.

All the other parts are what are called "feeders." Lacking the "sonorous delivery" which is essential to the effective telling of the legend, upon which so much depends in the play, Mr. George Barnum (the producer of the piece) did not come up to requirements as Tomotado, the image-maker. The character of Geoffrey Fuller, who has lost his Japanese house to Hamilton, was brightly acted by Mr. A. E. Greenaway. The parts of Nogo and Kimura, two obsequious and oily-tongued servants, were well played by Mr. Cyril Ritchards and Mr. Kenneth Brampton. The cast included Miss Elly Malyon as a blind street singer, Mr. Roy Redgrave as a boisterous and bullying Japanese priest, Mr. Rege Carey as John Charles Goto, a very much "Westernised" Japanese youth, Mr. Fred Cambourne as a fish seller, and Mr. Monte Luke as a bird seller. "The Willow Tree" will be the attraction all the week, with a matinee on Wednesday.

SALE TIME SAVINGS

SHOPPING at Anthony Horderns' Sale will prove a profitable investment for all who are wise enough to purchase their future requirements during the currency of Anthony Horderns' Famous Sale Prices.

Prices of almost every commodity are still rising, many lines in daily demand are almost unprocurable, cottons and woollens are becoming extremely scarce, and there seems no likelihood of relief from the position of higher costs and restricted supplies.

The pages of the Sale Catalogue enumerate many thousands of lines that have been genuinely reduced in price; in many cases to below to-day's costs in London. It will be noted that the quantities available are set out, therefore the wisdom of early buying is apparent. Write for a copy, posted free on request.

LAST DAY: SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16.

REDUCTIONS IN THE ART GALLERY.

A visit to Anthony Horderns' Fine Art Gallery should be included in every shopping programme. The displays feature innumerable articles of merit, suitable for Gifts that will be regarded with genuine admiration and permanent delight. The collections of English and American Hand-cut Crystal Table Glass embrace many pieces of Exquisite Beauty and Brilliance, and the elegantly decorated Table Services of China and Porcelain are worth inspecting. The selection of Water Colour Drawings and Oil Paintings by Australian and Continental Artists is unique.

ON THE LAND.

WHEAT OR STOCK.

The controversy that has surrounded the future of the wheat industry and its value in comparison with the production of other foodstuffs, has aroused unprecedented interest. It is certain that the deliberations of the committee that meets to-day at the request of the State Government will be closely followed, and it does not follow that its decision will be unanimously accepted. While there has been an immediate and exceptionally strong protest against any proposal to curtail the area cultivated for wheat, it has also been apparent that there is a strong difference of opinion as to the probable trend of future events and the future value of different foodstuffs. It would be unwise to accept any standpoint unreservedly, more particularly as to a large extent we are all groping in the dark. Never was the future a more difficult thing to forecast. The world faces a new and terrible condition, and there is practically no precedent to go upon, for never was mankind before enveloped in such a general catastrophe. The lessons of previous wars are of limited value because they were in a comparatively restricted sphere, and society had not attained the complex position of modern civilisation—or what we deluded ourselves was civilisation. Hence we cannot positively assert that the conditions that followed the Napoleonic wars will rule when this world's war comes to an end. None can yet more than hazard a guess as to how awful the position will be in Europe, and for that matter in other parts of the world, by that time. Yet despite this we have to endeavour to form an opinion as to that position when we consider the problem that is now confronting Australia.

Therefore we find vitally opposing views, and, allowing that self-interest must to some extent influence those views, it is but common prudence to thoroughly consider them, the more so, indeed, because they are so conflicting. But it is also advisable that there should be no doubt as to the point in dispute. There is a distinct difference in directly advocating a reduction in the wheat area because we cannot finance the proposition, and a proposal that it is a better commercial investment to concentrate our energies more upon increasing the numbers of live stock in this country. Yet there certainly seems some confusion in the matter if the various statements and reports are studied. Therefore a very sensible course has been adopted by the representatives of the Government in deciding to place definite questions before the committee to consider to-day. It is rather a pity that some such action was not taken at the beginning, as it would have prevented perhaps the alarm that has arisen in country centres, because an impression has gained ground that the Government was likely to forsake the wheat-growing industry. In actual fact no Government could afford to take up such an attitude. But nothing but good should result from consideration by practical men, whether it is advisable to organise our rural industries along the lines likely to return the greatest profit. The different views that have come from reliable quarters alone indicate that the matter requires consideration.

On the one hand we are told by men, whose views are entitled to respect, that after the war the world will be hungry for wheat and every available ship will be out to secure this essential foodstuff and that the old world has reached a state when it will take a long time to get its agriculture in shape again and fully productive. Against that authorities are quoted who hold that Europe will not want for wheat, but will want meat and similar foodstuffs. It is a very important matter to us to know, as producers of both wheat and meat, which will be in greatest demand. It seems to us that it is probable that the immediate demand will be for wheat particularly, and probably the more permanent demand for meat. It is incredible that the fields of Europe will be in a fit condition to yield prolific crops for at least a couple of seasons after the cessation of hostilities. Practical men will appreciate the fact that the withdrawal of a large proportion of agricultural labour means that the land has got in such a state, that it will take some time to work up and restore it to its old capacity, irrespective of what scientific knowledge may be available. At the same time they know that the cultivation paddocks will be restored long before the devastation amongst the flocks and herds can be remedied. It seems reasonable to conclude, therefore, that Europe will depend for a long time upon outside countries to provide a far greater proportion of her meatstuffs than was the case before the war. Prior to the war the world's increasing consumption of wheat left very little margin for a reserve stock, and with the depleted man-power, it will be a remarkable achievement if this position is remedied, despite the general belief that there will be a greater understanding of the need for food production.

As regards live stock, the position a year or two before there was any thought of war was that, in the opinion of one of the leading authorities in the meat industry in the United States, stock would be scarce and the prices of meat high for the next fifteen years. Since then there has been an enormous depletion of live stock in the older countries, and, it would seem that it must take years for Europe to build up its flocks and herds again. Upon reflection can we come to any other conclusion but that we should grow all the wheat and stock we can, yet at the same time have in mind the wisdom of organising rural conditions to so enable us to carry more stock, despite drought. That means more attention to fodder crops and better mixed farming. As has often been pointed out in these columns, we are not going to travel far if it is accepted as a foregone conclusion that a drought must devastate our live stock. Cattle and sheep are too valuable now to be left to the vagaries of the seasons, and that means we must make provision to meet drought by growing and conserving fodder, and providing better transport arrangements in order that we can work the season in one locality against the season in another. If the present controversy brings home some realisation of this fact—and there are indications that it will—it will be one of the best things that has happened in this country.

THE WHEAT MUDDLE.

Mr. D. J. M'Guire (Singleton) writes:—The chaos into which the wheat business has fallen would be amusing if it were not so serious. From the day the "pool" was formed nothing but muddle and confusion have prevailed, and every obstacle has been placed in the way of the Australian consumer. For instance, an absurd regulation was framed limiting the purchase of wheat to 50 bag lots to any person outside the few select agents. This at once increased the freight to nearly 100 per cent. This stupid regulation is still in existence, and it frequently happens that perhaps 150 bags of wheat are loaded on the same truck, to one firm upon which three separate freights have to be paid, based on A rates. This extra freight is, of course, passed on to the consumer. Notwithstanding that last season was a record one for maize, to-day almost famine rates are ruling owing to scarcity. And why? Hundreds of people who yearly consume wheat, owing to red tape and other stupid conditions surrounding the wheat business, last year fell back upon maize, hence the shortage, and many thousands of bushels of wheat which should have passed through these people's hands have been allowed to rot and become food for mice and weevil. Surely it is time some commonsense methods were introduced into the wheat business. One would think that it was sovereigns which were stacked up instead of wheat, the only difference being the care used in the conservation of it. It is to be hoped now that some good will come out of the conference called by the Minister, and that wheat will be made available to everyone who wants it, irrespective of the number of bags. Just before the new crop came in, several northern mills had to close down for want of wheat, whilst several thousand bags were stacked at Gunnedah and Boggabri which could not be got at because it was controlled by the pool.

ORCHARD PESTS.

During the past week Mr. W. H. Murray, an expert orchardist from Victoria, engaged by the Vacuum Oil Company to tour the Commonwealth and instruct orchardists in the use of the various sprays for the destruction of scale and other pests and diseases which attack fruit trees, has been visiting the Central Cumberland orchards. Questioned regarding his observations, Mr. Murray said that Indian wax scale was moving early by the million, and was more in evidence this year than ever. White louse and red scale were also developing fast, but was not so far forward as the white wax scale. He found that many of the orchardists were doubtful of the beneficial effects of soda spray, full strength, to kill wax scale, as they got a lot of dead wood the following year if it was used to the strength recommended by the department.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

Mallalieu's eyes, roving about the room, fell on the decanter. He pulled himself out of his chair, found a clean glass, and took a stiff drink. And his partner, watching him, saw that his hands, too, were shaking.

"That's a facer!" said Mallalieu. His voice had grown stronger, and the colour came back to his cheeks. "A real facer. As you say—after thirty years! It's hard—it's damned hard. And—what does he want? What's he going to do?"

"Wants to blackmail us, of course," replied Cotherstone, with a mirthless laugh. "What else should he do? What could he do? Why, he could tell all Highmarket who we are, and ——"

"Aye, aye!—but the thing is here," he interrupted. "Supposing we do square him?—is there any reliance to be placed on him then? It 'ud only be the old game—he'd want more and more, until——"

"He said an annuity," remarked Cotherstone, thoughtfully. "And he added significantly, that he was getting an old man."

"How old?" demanded Mallalieu.

"Between sixty and seventy," said Cotherstone. "I'm under the impression that he could be squared, could be satisfied. He'll have to be. We can't let it get out—I can't any way. There's my daughter to think of."

"D'ye think I'd let it get out?" asked Mallalieu. "No; all I 'm thinking of is if we really can silence him. I've heard of cases where a man's paid blackmail for years and years, and been no better for it in the end."

"Well—he's coming here to-morrow afternoon some time," said Cotherstone. "We'd better see him—together. After all, a hundred a year—a couple of hundred a year—'ud be better than exposure."

Mallalieu drank off his whisky and pushed the glass aside.

"I'll consider it," he remarked. "What's certain sure is that he'll have to be quietened. I must go—I've an appointment. Are you coming out?"

"Not yet," replied Cotherstone. "I've all these papers to go through. Well, think it well over. He's a man to be feared."

Mallalieu made no answer. He, like Kitely, went off without a word of farewell, and Cotherstone was once more left alone.

CHAPTER III.
MURDER.

When Mallalieu had gone, Cotherstone gathered up the papers which his clerk had brought in, and sitting down at his desk tried to give his attention to them. The effort was not altogether a success. He had hoped that the sharing of the bad news with his partner would bring some relief to him, but his anxieties were still there. He was always seeing that queer, sinister look in Kitely's knowing eyes; it suggested that as long as Kitely lived there would be no safety. Even if Kitely kept his word, kept any compact made with him, he would always have the two partners under his thumb. And for 30 years Cotherstone had been under no man's thumb, and the fear of having a master was hateful to him. He heartily wished that Kitely was dead—dead and buried, and his secret with him; he wished that it had been anywise possible to have crushed the life out of him where he sat in that easy chair as soon as he had shown himself the reptile that he was. A man might kill any poisonous insect, any noxious reptile at pleasure—why not a human blood-sucker like that?

He sat there a long time, striving to give his attention to his papers, and making a poor show of it. The figures danced about before him; he could make neither head nor tail of the technicalities in the specifications and estimates; every now and then fits of abstraction came over him, and he sat drumming the tips of his fingers on his blotting-pad, staring vacantly at the shadows in the far depths of the room, and always thinking—thinking of the terrible danger of revelation. And always, as an under-current, he was saying that for himself he cared naught—Kitely could do what he liked, or would have done what he liked, had there only been himself to think for. But—Lettie! All his life was now centred in her and in her happiness, and Lettie's happiness, he knew, was centred in the man she was going to marry. And Cotherstone, though he believed that he knew men pretty well, was not sure that he knew Windle Bent sufficiently to feel sure that he would endure a stiff test. Bent was ambitious—he was resolved on a career. Was he the sort of man to stand the knowledge which Kitely might give him? For there was always the risk that whatever he and Mallalieu might do, Kitely, while there was breath in him, might split.

A sudden ringing at the bell of the telephone in the outer office made Cotherstone jump in his chair as if the arresting hand of justice had suddenly been laid on him. In spite of himself he rose trembling, and there were beads of perspiration on his forehead as he walked across the room.

"Nerves," he muttered to himself. "I must be in a queer way to be taken like that. It won't do—especially at this turn. What is it?" he demanded, going to the telephone. "Who is that?"

His daughter's voice, surprised and admonitory, came to him along the wire.

"Is that you, father?" she exclaimed. "What are you doing? Don't you remember you asked Windle and his friend, Mr. Brereton to supper at 8 o'clock? It's a quarter to 8 now. Do come home."

Cotherstone let out an exclamation which signified annoyance. The event of the late afternoon had completely driven it out of his recollection that Windle Bent had an old school-friend, a young barrister from London, staying with him, and that both had been asked to supper that evening at Cotherstone's house. But Cotherstone's annoyance was not because of his own forgetfulness, but because his present abstraction made him dislike the notion of company.

"I'd forgotten—for the moment," he called. "I've been very busy. All right, Lettie—I'm coming on at once. Shan't be long."

But when he had left the telephone he made no haste. He lingered by his desk; he was slow in turning out the gas; slow in quitting and locking up his office; he went slowly away through the town. Nothing could have been further from his wishes than a desire to entertain company that night—and especially a stranger. His footsteps dragged as he passed through the market-place and turned into the outskirts beyond.

Some years previously to this, when they had both married and made money, the two partners had built new houses for themselves. Outside Highmarket, on its western boundary, rose a long, low hill, called Highmarket Shawl; the slope which overhung the town was thickly covered with fir and pine, amidst which great masses of limestone crag jutted out here and there. At the foot of this hill certain plots of building land had been sold, and Mallalieu had bought one and Cotherstone another, and on these they had erected two solid stone houses, fitted up with all the latest improvements known to the building trade. Each was proud of his house; each delighted in welcoming friends and acquaintances there—this was the first night Cotherstone could remember on which it was hateful to him to cross his own threshold. The lighted windows, the smell of good things cooked for supper, brought him no sense of satisfaction; he had to make a distinct effort to enter and to present a face of welcome to his two guests, who were already there awaiting him.

"Couldn't get in earlier," he said, replying to Lettie's half-anxious, half-playful scolding. "There was some awkward business turned up this evening—and as it is, I shall have to run away for an hour after supper—can't be helped. How do you do, sir?" he went on, giving his hand to the stranger. "Glad to see you in these parts—you'll find this a cold climate after London, I'm afraid."

He took a careful look at Bent's friend as they all sat down to supper—out of sheer habit of inspecting any man who was new to him. And after a glance or two he said to himself that this young limb of the law was a sharp chap—a keen-eyed, alert, noticeable fellow, whose every action and tone denoted great mental activity. He was sharper than Bent, said Cotherstone, and in his opinion, that was saying a good deal. Bent's ability was on the surface; he was an excellent specimen of the business man of action, who had ideas out of the common, but was not so much given to deep and quiet thinking as to prompt doing of things quickly decided on. He glanced from one to the other, mentally comparing them. Bent was a tall, handsome man, blonde, blue-eyed, ready of word and laugh; Brereton, a medium-sized, compact fellow, dark of hair and eye, with an olive complexion that almost suggested foreign origin; the sort, decided Cotherstone, that thought a lot and said little. And forcing himself to talk he tried to draw the stranger out, watching him, too, to see if he admired Lettie. For it was one of Cotherstone's greatest joys in life to bring folk to his house and watch the effect which his pretty daughter had on them, and he was rewarded now in seeing that the young man from London evidently ap-lauded his friend's choice and paid polite tribute to Lettie's charm.

"And what might you have been doing with Mr. Brereton since he got down yesterday?" asked Cotherstone. "Showing him round, of course?"

"I've been tormenting him chiefly with family history," answered Bent, with a laughing glance at his sweetheart. "You didn't know I was raking up everything I could get hold of about my forbears, did you? Oh, I've been busy at that innocent amusement for a month past—old Kitely put me up to it."

BUTTENSHAW.—In loving memory of my dear brother-in-law, Will Buttenshaw, who departed this life January 28, 1917. Never to be forgotten by his sister-in-law, Alice Smith.

CANHAM.—In loving memory of our dear husband and son, who died of pneumonia in England, January 28, 1917. Inserted by his loving wife and mother, Ida and S. A. Canham.

COTTAM.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Harold Leslie, who died at Ellenville, Rawson-street, Haberfield, January 28, 1913, aged 7 years and 9 months. Inserted by his sorrowing parents, brothers, and sister.

DOYLE.—In loving memory of my dear husband, Ernest Leo, late of Paterson, who departed this life January 26, 1917. Inserted by his loving wife, Ada Doyle.

DUGGAN.—In loving memory of Margaret Duggan, who died suddenly January 28, 1907.

When days are dark, and friends are few,
Dear mother and sister, how we long for you.

Inserted by her loving son, Edward, sister and brother, M. A. Goff and E. Robinson, and sister-in-law, M. Williams.

DUGGAN.—In loving memory of R. J. Duggan, who passed away January 12, 1916. Inserted by his loving brother, Edward, aunties, M. A. Goff, M. Williams, and uncle, E. Robinson.

FROST.—In loving memory of my dear wife and our dear mother Eva Abigale Frost, who departed this life January 28, 1916. Inserted by her loving husband and family, Daisy and Vivian, on active service.

GIBSON.—In loving memory of my dear wife, Evelyn Mary, who departed this life January 28, 1917.

A year has passed, and none can tell
The loss of one I loved so well;
But while she lies in peaceful sleep
Her memory I shall always keep.

Inserted by her loving husband, Joseph Gibson, 44 Louisa-road, Balmain.

GIBSON.—In loving memory of our dear daughter, Evelyn Mary, who departed this life January 28, 1917.

It was hard to part with our dear daughter,
And hard to bear our grief,
And not until God calls me too
Will my poor heart find relief.

Inserted by her loving father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cochrane, sisters, brother, and brother-in-law, A. H. Thompson.

GIBSON.—In loving memory of Evelyn Gibson, who died January 28, 1917. Inserted by her loving friend, Fannie McKone.

HALLWOOD.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Arthur, who passed away January 28, 1917, aged 19.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
That never can be filled.

Inserted by his loving father, mother, sister, and brothers.

HALLWOOD.—In sad and loving memory of Arthur, dearly beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hallwood, died January 28, 1917, in his 19th year.

God hath said, "our dead are blest,"
In Him have faith,
He knoweth best.
What we call death, is simply rest,
A peaceful sleep on Jesus's breast.

Inserted by Mr. and Mrs. Roby.

HAMMOND.—In loving memory of our dear father, Abner Hammond, who departed this life January 28, 1910.

There is one thing death cannot sever,
Loving remembrance lasts forever.

MULLAN.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Emma Mullan, died January 28, 1914.

A mother's love is a blessing,
Do not treat her with scorn;
Cherish her while she is living,
For you will miss her when she's gone.
Heed her when you are in childhood,
For when she is old and grey
You will never know her value
Till she is lying beneath the clay.

Inserted by her son and daughter-in-law, Will and Ruby.

MULLAN.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Emma, who departed this life January 28, 1914, aged 59 years.

There are days of bitter anguish,
When the tears begin to fall,
But the parting with our mother,
Was the hardest of them all.

Inserted by her loving children, George, Will, Mary, Sid, and Dorothy.

MULLAN.—In loving remembrance of our dear friend, Emma, who passed away January 28, 1914. Inserted by Mr. and Mrs. W. Salmon.

STILL THE MAILED FIST.

The German Chancellor's tardy reply to Mr. Lloyd George and President Wilson holds out little immediate prospect of the German Government inclining towards such a peace as could be acceptable to the Allies. Possibly, and, judging from the tenour of recent cables, probably a large section of the German people is not at one with their Government in this connection, but for the moment at least that fact is of little weight. The military party still dominates the situation, and is unlikely to yield one jot of its claims till it can either no longer stand up against the force of enemy public opinion, or till it is compelled to capitulate before Allied arms. The position in Austria-Hungary is much more favourable for peace, though whether the Dual Empire is already tottering or whether the present symptoms are but forerunners of something more serious later on is not very clear. From neither Turkey nor Bulgaria has much that is authentic been heard of late. It is natural to expect that one of the weaker of the Central Powers would be the first to find the position intolerable. Turkey has been suffering grievously of late from British arms, and the loss of the Goeben and the Breslau last week will not encourage those who for the moment control the destinies of the Sublime Porte. But it is Germany, after all, that is the backbone as well as the brains and guiding spirit of the Quadruple Alliance, so it is to the words of her accredited spokesman that we must give special attention.

Though Count von Hertling did not completely traverse the ground covered by either of the statesmen whose pronouncements he purported to answer, he made it clear enough that in their essentials the Allies and the Central Powers are still as far apart as the poles. The Chancellor makes no promise to evacuate Belgium or to restore that miserable country as far as possible to its former prosperity and security, which is one of the main features of the Allied proposals. Instead, he arrogantly suggests that Great Britain should abandon Gibraltar, Malta, Hongkong, the Falklands, and other strong naval bases. The settlement of Poland must, so the Chancellor says, be left to Germany and Austria alone. In other words, the robber bands must be allowed the full fruits of their depredations. If we are to credit a report from Paris, Count Czernin, the Austrian Foreign Minister, recently informed the Reichsrath that the Dual Monarchy did not intend to take an acre of Russian territory or a single centime of indemnity. There is a manifest discrepancy between the two statements. To that extent the ruling classes in Austria are much nearer to acceptable peace terms than are those of Germany itself. "The population of Poland shall decide its own fate," says the Austrian Minister. "This question must not delay peace for a single day." Such sentiments might have been uttered by Mr. Lloyd George himself. Count von Hertling makes some reference to Alsace and Lorraine. They will never be handed back to France; first, because they were Germany's in 1780; and, secondly, because to-day 87 per cent. of the inhabitants of those unhappy provinces speak the German tongue. The former excuse is a perversion of history, the latter is irrelevant. Even if 87 per cent. of the Alsatians and Lorrainers do understand German, is that not rather a tribute to their linguistic faculties than an indication of the direction of their allegiance? Remember, also, that 200,000 of the inhabitants of Alsace-Lorraine emigrated in 1872 to escape German rule, which they abhorred. The restoration of these provinces is a debt of honour that Britain owes to France for saving civilisation as she did by her valiant resistance of the German hordes in 1914. So we can pass over Von Hertling's talk of the "lasting integrity of the German Empire and the security of its vital interests." If the iron and coal fields of the lost provinces are vital to the interests of Germany so, too, on the same reasoning, may the mineral resources of those additional French provinces now crushed under enemy heels be vital to the future wellbeing of the predatory robber bands that still infest them, visiting them with pestilence, fire, and sword.

The Chancellor welcomes President Wilson's reference to the "freedom of the seas"—not, we may be certain, according to the British definition, nor even according to the modified American definition, but according to the German concept. This means little more than the disarmament of all naval Powers, leaving the world under the domination of the military nations, of which Germany is to-day the most potent. If Germany could secure "freedom of the seas" on those lines the war need be fought out no longer, for the struggle would have already ended in a decisive Teutonic victory. The dismantlement of Gibraltar and other British naval stations gives the cue to what is in Count Hertling's mind. Peace on such terms will never be while a British ship floats the ocean. No. Whatever the German people may think of it the German Government does not yet want peace.

OUR WAR POLICY.

The announcement by the Prime Minister of the policy of his Government was notable as much for its brevity as for the wide range which it covered. The brevity was due to it being merely a recital of the subjects to which the Government intended to give attention before the recess, with the object of bringing forward detailed schemes when Parliament reassembles. Not a single hint is given of how it is proposed to deal with any subject, although there was not a subject mentioned that was not of the utmost importance to ensure our doing our part in the war. We are still in the dark as to the intentions of the Ministry concerning the most vital of all problems—how reinforcements are to be obtained for our troops now fighting in Europe and in Palestine. If the information which was conveyed to the people on Friday by the Director-General of Recruiting is correct it is certain that the obtaining of recruits is made more difficult by Government action. Mr. Mackinnon pointed out that during the past year the standard of physical fitness for the Australian soldier had been substantially increased. There are good grounds for believing that even at the time the standard was raised that standard was higher than the standard exacted for British recruits. Why has it been made still more difficult to get through the test? As Mr. Mackinnon stated, it is unreasonable to expect that the high standard of the earlier bodies of recruits could be maintained for all the recruits. Then the selectors had practically the whole of the adventurous young manhood from which to choose. The number of rejections which in the past year have been announced indicate that there have been many young men of seemingly average physical build and strength willing to go, but not accepted because of this increased standard. It is often forgotten that the spirit will carry many through an ordeal from which a stronger but not so enthusiastic nature would shrink. Repatriation is another subject to which the Ministry is to attend further during the recess; shipbuilding is to be again discussed, as well as the necessity of adding another forty millions sterling to the war debt.

The last of the proposals of the Government is the organisation of industry, with which is bound up an amendment of industrial legislation. We know in some manner the measure of the Prime Minister's proposals with regard to the organisation of industry. He recognises that in much of the present system waste of effort and duplication of effort are prevalent, and there is needless competition in the export trade, with a consequent cheapening of our wares to the foreigner. What the people have got to be told is how all this waste and duplication and needless cheapening are to be avoided, while at the same time the just as great evils of monopoly and restriction of trade are to be prevented. Given these conditions, there is no doubt that such organisation would be of benefit to our industries. Production would be increased, waste would be largely eliminated, and our exports would bring a better price. The measure of success depends on how far the work of organisation is kept out of reach of the politician and the Government official. The work, to be of any value, must be entrusted to men of large and varied business experience. The politician, even though he has had business training, is a politician first and last, and the Government official cannot forget that he is a Government official all the time. If the business man is to be subordinated to the politician and the Government official he will prove of little use, because in the nature of things the politician works for a political object, and only the suggestion which will achieve that political object will be countenanced. The business advantage will always have to give second place to the political advantage. As to what may be achieved by placing the business man in control the example of the United States may be cited. Every business matter connected with defence as soon as war was declared was placed in charge of a bureau of business men, to each matter or group of allied matters its own bureau. Whether we shall grow wheat or flesh meat is agitating the councils of the State Government, who have called in conference of farmers to make some determination on the subject. That question also will engage the minds of members of the Federal Government during the recess. As the weeks go by it is increasingly certain that all Europe will clamour for wheat at the end of the war. Even now America is cutting down her consumption by 30 per cent. in order to send more to Britain, France, and Italy. And the tragedy of it is that Australia has six million tons awaiting shipment, but no ships can be spared to take any but small quantities. Will Australia add to that amount by continuing to grow wheat for export? Finance is the obstacle. All depends on the Federal Government. An advance of 3s on the present harvest has been made with a guarantee of a total payment of 4s. The same guarantee has been given for the 1918-19 harvest, and so the position is clear until the end of this year. The farmer may rest assured that he will receive what will keep him on the right side of the ledger as regards the yield of the crop which he will shortly sow. Further than this guarantee the Prime Minister could not go at the present time. The difficulties confronting him are, indeed, immense. No prospect of sale for the present exists. No particulars of exports are published, but as imports are declining month by month, owing to the lack of sufficient shipping space, we know that exports will be more and more curtailed. To raise the requisite money here to guarantee the next harvest will need a very delicate handling of Australian finances. Yet the farmer must have money, otherwise he cannot carry on.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Alfred Deakin's health towards the close of last week was such as to cause anxiety to his relations. His many friends will be pleased to learn that his condition has since improved.

The Rev. W. J. V. Saville, of the London Missionary Society, arrived in Sydney on Saturday from New Guinea, via Brisbane. He expects to remain here for some time.

Lieutenant Duquenot, M.C., of Mount Diamond, Victoria, who left Australia with the first contingent as a member of the 4th Australian Light Horse, has arrived in Sydney on furlough. He has for the past year and eight months been a lieutenant in the Grenadier Guards, and has seen service with the Imperial force at the Somme, on the Yser, and at other places. Other Australian officers who have arrived home are Captain Baillieu, M.M., of Melbourne, Lieutenant Baillieu, and Captain Burrows, M.C. Lieutenant Duquenot has been several times mentioned in despatches.

Mr. Robert Sticht, manager of the Mount Lyell Mining Company, has returned to Australia after an absence of nine months in the United States.

Matron Russell, R.R.C., Garrison Hospital, Paddington, was, on the eve of her departure for service abroad, entertained at Farmer's to dinner, and afterwards at Her Majesty's Theatre, by the nursing sisters of her staff.

A private cable message has been received from London stating that Captain G. D. K. Waldron, R.A.M.C., has been awarded the Military Cross. Dr. Waldron left Sydney early in 1915 with 100 other doctors called for by the Imperial authorities for immediate service, and practically all his service has been on the British front in Belgium. He is the only son of the late Mr. G. C. K. Waldron, formerly city solicitor, and is the eldest grandson of the late Sir George Dibbs.

Gunner Adrian K. Roberts, who left Sydney 15 months ago with the Field Artillery, has received a commission in France, and is now on his way to India, to join the cavalry. He was educated at the Sydney Church of England Grammar School, North Sydney, and represented the school in the "all schools" cricket match two years ago. He is the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Roberts, of Marsovia, Fox Valley-road, Warrawee.

MINING INDUSTRY.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Mr. J. M. Baddeley, president of the Colliery Employees' Federation, replying to the statement made by Mr. Beeby in the "Herald" on Saturday, said:—"I notice that Mr. Beeby makes reference again to local difficulties, and states that a great number of them have been settled between the management and the men actually concerned. This is no innovation. Past experiences show that the policy of the Colliery Employees' Federation and the miners generally is that when a grievance arises the miners concerned always endeavour to settle it themselves with the management. I am positive that this policy was more in practice prior to the upheaval last year than it is now.

"It has been particularly noted in many instances that since the resumption of work a number of the colliery managers, who profess to be governed by the Government, are unapproachable, and in some cases make reference to the fact that it is quite different since the Government has taken control of the collieries. The feeling over it has become more acute owing to the interference of the Government in the mines of New South Wales, and unless an alteration is made by the Government, then it can accept the responsibility for what may happen in the coal mining industry.

"Mr. Beeby mentions that we profess to believe that some scheme of the character outlined by him would be a great benefit to the industry. Let me emphasise the fact that the majority of the members of my federation were quite content with the machinery that existed under the Federal Government, namely, the Federal Coal Board, presided over by Mr. Justice Edmunds. If that machinery were again reconstructed I would have no doubt of the confidence of the majority of the members; but if the Minister endeavours to coerce members of the federation to the machinery in which they have not had an opportunity of being thoroughly conversant, and up till now leads in a direction which indicates that sympathy will be extended to one particular side, then I say that we cannot expect the industry to go on as it would have done under the machinery which the men have been accustomed to. We are just as anxious as the Minister or his colleagues to have the coal mining industry working in a manner which would give credit to both the employers and employees."

DOCTORS AND LODGES.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

An important development in the dispute between the doctors and the lodges took place on Saturday in the shape of Federal intervention at the instance of the Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes. On Saturday night, under instructions from Mr. Hughes, the Federal Crown Solicitor (Sir Robert Garran), had an interview with Dr. W. R. Boyd, and conveyed the desire of Mr. Hughes that the resignations should be held over for a month. The most serious consideration will be given to the request at a special meeting of the council of the British Medical Association on Tuesday evening. The parties to the dispute meantime are firm. The conference called by the Premier on Saturday made no advance towards a settlement. The societies on Saturday night decided on a line of political action with a view to having the issues decided by an arbitration tribunal should there be no postponement of the resignations.

IMPERIAL CHALLENGE SHIELD.

The following are the results of the Imperial challenge shield competitions (senior and junior) held in 1917.

This is the third time since the inauguration of the Imperial challenge shield competitions in 1910 that Australia has had the honour of winning this shield.

TO STOP FOOD EXPORTS.

BRITAIN CONSULTS AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

It is is understood that, in reply to an inquiry by the Imperial authorities as to whether there existed any urgent demand in Australia for foodstuffs from Great Britain, the Commonwealth Government has intimated that, in view of the scarcity of shipping space, imported foodstuffs are not essential to the welfare of the country. It is therefore considered probable that early action will be taken to restrict the export of foodstuffs from Great Britain to Australia, and it is likely that the present orders may not be fulfilled.

THE PIONEERS.

HOISTING THE FLAG AT PHILLIP'S STATUE.

Time-honoured and so rich in historical associations, the ceremony of hoisting the Union Jack at Governor Phillip's statue in the Botanic Gardens, and the meeting later at their headquarters in Hunter-street, of the members of the Australasian Pioneers' Club, formed interesting features of the Anniversary Day celebrations. Among those at both functions were many whose names are by descent inseparably linked with the earlier days. They included the president of the Pioneers' Club (Mr. R. J. Black, M.L.C.), who was accompanied by Mrs. and Miss Black, and whose grandfather arrived here 120 years ago. The Consul-General for France (M. Chayet), and the Consul for Italy (Dr. Marano) were also present.

Prior to the unfurling of the Union Jack, which was done to the accompaniment of cheering, the president of the Pioneers' Club (Mr. R. J. Black), standing alongside the towering statue of New South Wales' first Governor, Captain Arthur Phillip, R.N., delivered an interesting address, in which he traversed the doings of the great pioneers and navigators whose work led to the occupation of this country by Great Britain. He said that even at the present time, in a war for which the Empire was fighting for its existence, a large number of the descendants of the pioneers had done and were doing their part nobly. (Applause.) "This island continent," proceeded Mr. Black, "which Cook took possession of in the name of the King, was given to us by the British Government, practically free of all restrictions. The area of Australia is about 3,000,000 square miles, considerably larger than Europe, if Russia is excluded. This vast area is held by about 5,000,000, about two-thirds the population of the city of London; and as regards natural resources, and power to produce commodities required by the human race, it possesses a wealth which excites the envy of other nations, and but for the British navy would, in all probability, ere this, have been dominated by Germany. When the war is over and peace once more reigns, one of the greatest problems we shall have to face will be the best means to strengthen our holding of this vast area. There is one great factor staring us in the face—one that has been in the past sadly neglected and hampered with restrictions. It is the question of immigration, by a steady increase of population, not an immigration of paupers, but an influx of sturdy yeomen and their families—people who will bring with them some means, great or small, men with stout hearts, who will be prepared to go into the country as our pioneers did in the early days. Would that our people could realise their great heritage in this vast and rich country. Notwithstanding the war, there is an existence of apparent prosperity, but it is largely artificial. The Commonwealth and State Governments are spending money freely, raised by loans, for war purposes and public works. Thousands of people participate in this seeming prosperity, but when these borrowings cease, and the large and increasing burdens of the payments of principal add interest have to be met, then a serious day of reckoning will take place. There is only one way in which a country like ours can really prosper, and that is to produce in excess of consumption.

"It is frequently stated that there are now no fresh spaces for other nations to acquire for colonisation, but they forget the rich islands of the South Pacific Ocean, some of which are almost adjacent to our own continent. The question of the control of these rich islands is one of the great problems to be solved after the war. Australian feeling is strongly averse to any of the islands, or portions of them, being again placed under German domination or control, and the spirit of our people, who have suffered so much as the result of this cruel and unjustifiable war, is such that they would undoubtedly resent the presence of the German flag on any of the islands adjacent to Australia. (Applause.)

"I would like to see established in Sydney," Mr. Black said, "a National Historical Museum. There is, I believe, a movement in Melbourne to get such a museum established there; but this, the parent State, and the parent city, is the proper place for such an institution. (Applause.) We hope that this club of pioneers' descendants will itself become the pioneer of a truly national Australasian spirit, founded upon a patriotic appreciation of the splendid courage, perseverance and endurance that added an empire to the British Crown, destined, let us hope, to become its strongest support as the future cradle of our race." (Applause.)

A number of toasts at the subsequent gathering at the Pioneers' Club afforded several speakers an opportunity to go back over old times.

The Consul-General for France (M. Chayet), following upon the loyal toast, and in response to the toast of "Our Allies," said that the photograph of La Perouse in a prominent place in the club proved that body's recognition of the great part played by French navigators in the discovery of Australia. There were no fewer than 800 French names given by that country's navigators to various places on the coast of Australia, and a promise had been obtained from the authorities by one who had come out on behalf of the Geographical Society of Paris that at least 250 of them would be re-established. (Applause.) He (M. Chayet) would be only too pleased to attend the gathering shortly at the Historical Society here to commemorate La Perouse and his work.

The Consul for Italy (Dr. Marano) said he was always glad to be among English people, because he recognised the mutual sympathy that existed between the English and the Italian peoples. (Applause.) He felt confident that their conjoint efforts, along with those of the other Allies, would assist to bring a complete victory, and to establish those principles of civilisation for which they stood. (Applause.)

Captain Greaves, president of the Historical Society, spoke of the bond of sympathy, because of kindred interests, between the two bodies, and held that a national historical museum should be established in Sydney.

Mr. J. G. Griffin spoke of some of the earlier phases of this State's history, and said it was pleasing to see among the gathering so many descendants of those who had carried out the great work which had been such a factor in the present position of this country.

Captain J. H. Watson, an ex-president of the Historical Society, spoke of the conspicuous part played by Jas. M. Matra in the early settlement of Australia, and said that if the whole of the correspondence of the early days were gone through they would see that it was Matra who was responsible for settlement.

Speaking of the establishment of a national historical museum, Mr. K. R. Cramp, M.A., hon. secretary of the Historical Society of New South Wales, said that his organisation had for some time been bent on such a project. The "Herald" had powerfully supported the idea with a leader. "We initiated the movement," he added. "We have urged it very vigorously for some time, and with all respect to the other cities of Australia there is only one natural home for such a museum. It is the city which has been for many years the home and the centre of the whole of Australian life."

The presence of Mr. C. R. Blaxland, another of the speakers, was interesting because of the fact that about 100 years ago his grandfather was making wine on the Parramatta River, the latter having received two medals for wine sent to England in a small casket in 1821, "for the purpose," as Mr. C. R. Blaxland put it, "of bringing before English people a new industry out here."

Mr. C. T. Burfitt, another notable figure in the Historical Society, spoke of John M'Arthur as a man to whom Australia would ever be indebted for the establishment of an industry—the wool industry—that reported a larger sum than the whole of the other industries of Australia put together.

WOODEN VESSELS.

BUILDING FOR AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Saturday.

The first of the 14 wooden vessels which are being constructed in America to the order of the Commonwealth Government will probably be launched at the end of next week.

BOY SCOUTS.

The annual conference of the New South Wales section of the Boy Scouts' Association was held in the Royal Naval House, Grosvenor-street, on Saturday. There was a large and representative gathering of scout masters and troop leaders from the metropolitan and country districts.

Commissioner A. D. Johnston presided. It was decided to circularise the heads of religious organisations in the State with a view to enlisting their sympathy, and also to appeal to returned soldiers to take an interest in the movement. It was also decided to inform the scout organisations in other States of the advisability of forming a federal council for Australia. A motion was carried providing for the formation of a scout-masters' class, to allow those who attend to qualify for life-saving certificates.

THE CYCLONE.

THRILLING ESCAPES AT SEA.

FATE OF MACKAY.

BRISBANE, Sunday.

The Premier received the following radio message to-night through the Naval Department from the Bingera, which arrived at Mackay to-day:—

Mackay is in ruins. There has been great loss of life through the flood and tidal wave.

Sugar crops have been destroyed. There is no gas or water supply.

The town is under military and police control. The steamers Brinawar and Relief have been sunk. The tugs Tay and Apia are ashore.

No boats are available to attend at Flat Top or to the lights. The port-master requires steamers, buoys, lanterns, and three-quarter-inch chain. The flood is still menacing, and heavy rain is falling.

The steamer Arawatta arrived at Gladstone on Saturday after a very rough trip from Townsville. The vessel experienced the full force of the cyclone between Townsville and Bowen, and she had to slow down owing to the mountainous seas. The Arawatta arrived at Bowen during the terrific gale, and managed to discharge her cargo. A good deal of rain fell at Bowen, but the town suffered very little damage. The Arawatta left Bowen on Monday afternoon, and proceeded towards Flat Top, but on arrival off the island no light could be seen. Closer inspection showed that all the houses on the island had been demolished; and presently a signal for a boat was received from the lighthouse keeper. When the boat went ashore the lighthouse keeper explained that Flat Top Island was short of supplies, and he was given a supply. No live stock remained on the island, over which the wind blew at a velocity of 200 miles an hour. The Arawatta remained in the vicinity while an endeavour was made to get information regarding Mackay, but no sign of the township could be seen. In its stead was a vast expanse of water. At a later stage the lighthouse keeper signalled to the Arawatta: "Mackay is Morsing S.O.S., send us immediate assistance." This message Captain Hall transmitted to Brisbane. He is of opinion that a calamity of enormous magnitude has befallen Mackay.

BRISBANE, Saturday.

Inspector Wilson telegraphed to-day to Townsville from Ayr that the Carstairs end of the Inkerman bridge and pier No. 10, a wooden structure, have been carried away, but that the Ayr end of the bridge is standing well.

Bowen has advised that the Home Hill and the Don bridges have been carried away, and that the Elliott bridge was partly carried away. The water is now 25ft over the old bridge at Selheim, and is rising fast.

Mr. Hunter stated to-day that in addition to £1000 given to the Central Queensland Relief Fund, the Government voted £1000 for relief work in Mackay and the district. Mr. Theodore stated to-day that the Government had nothing later from Mackay, but it was taking definite steps to relieve whatever distress existed. Fifty tons of foodstuff were being shipped by the Aramac.

Captain Forrester was accompanying the vessel to do whatever was necessary to afford relief, and to assist in re-establishing the buoys, beacons, and lights that had been destroyed or damaged.

The Government was making arrangements with the A.U.S.N. Company to have 300 tons of cargo, mostly foodstuffs, in the Wyreema, discharged at Townsville, and to be conveyed from Townsville to Mackay.

EXTENT OF DAMAGE.

DAWSON RIVER EIGHT MILES WIDE.

BRISBANE, Sunday.

A Charleville message states that cloudy weather prevails, and indications are that there will be more rain shortly. The Warrego River is reported to be in high flood. The Augathella is rising fast, and the Langlo River is still in very high flood and uncrossable. The mail train to Quilpie yesterday was cancelled on account of the water being over the railway bridge.

Mr. Hartley, member for Fitzroy, has informed Mr. Hunter that the position at Rockhampton is well in hand. In some quarters there is apprehension as to the position of the residents of St. Lawrence. Inspector McGrath advises that he has positive information that Captain Graham landed there between the 11th and 15th instant six tons of flour, two tons of sugar, and other small lots of groceries. In these circumstances there is no danger of the inhabitants of St. Lawrence having to endure privations, and any apprehension felt regarding the buildings at Meteor Park Orphanage has been relieved by information received that they stood the severe test to which they were exposed. Neerkoll Creek ran very strongly, the water rising to near the church. Some idea of the force of the flood waters may be gained when it is stated that a three-ton boiler was shifted some considerable distance by the current. Among those who were in a perilous position at North Rockhampton were Mr. E. Byles and family. They were completely isolated, over five feet of water being round their residence. A rescue party succeeded in getting them to safety.

At Emu Park the fishing fleet suffered severely. At Yeppoon the damage was also very severe, and fruit gardens suffered severely. Several houses were lifted clean off their blocks and deposited some distance away. One house had a tree blown across it, but the occupants escaped. The scene on the beach is one of confusion.

Yesterday the stationmaster at Yaamba advised that the river registered 50 feet on the gauge, and was falling at the rate of half an inch per hour.

Advice received on Saturday morning showed that the Dawson River at Boolburra was 61 feet 6 inches, and rising at the rate of four inches an hour. It is estimated that the Dawson River is eight miles wide at this point. A couple of boats have been sent by train for the use of the police at Yaamba, where the water at one point is a mile wide.

SUPPLIES FOR ROCKHAMPTON.

ROCKHAMPTON, Sunday.

There has been a somewhat serious development regarding getting supplies to Rockhampton. Mr. W. H. Rudd, chairman of directors of Walter Reid and Co., stated that, in expectation of the early resumption of traffic between Rockhampton and the west and the certainty of a rush of orders for foodstuffs for that part of Queensland as soon as the flood was over he had sent telegrams to Melbourne ordering certain shipments to be made at once by steamer to Rockhampton. The reply he received, however, was that the shipping companies would not take cargo for Rockhampton owing to the floods in the river. This, he says is quite inexplicable. People who know Rockhampton are aware that a flood makes really very little difference in the matter of shipping.

SCARCITY OF FOOD AT MOUNT MORGAN.

ROCKHAMPTON, Saturday.

The Gas Company is still unable to supply gas, and it is impossible to state when gas will again be available. Unfortunately the water got into the mains. Electric light supply is still available, but is being severely taxed.

Alarming reports are current here regarding Emerald, but a telegram received from there to-night states that the Nogoa River rose 42 feet and is now stationary, but it is six inches under last year's record. No damage was done in that district except to the railway lines.

The latest advices regarding the Dawson River state that at Boolburra it is 52 feet six inches, and is rising an inch per hour. Information from Mount Morgan states that the supply of butter has run out, and stocks of potatoes, sugar, and flour are low.

During the day it was learnt that a motor boat had run from Rockhampton to Gracemere, from which point the line to Mount Morgan is clear. No effort was being made to forward anything to Mount Morgan. Whereupon the citizens became very wrathful, and sent in a petition to the Mayor (Alderman Enright) with the result that he sent the following message to the Postal Inspector at Rockhampton:—"Having learnt that a motor boat had run from Rockhampton to Gracemere to-day the citizens of Mount Morgan earnestly urge that the mails and newspapers be forwarded by this means to-morrow morning in time to catch the train from Gracemere to here. If necessary will defray expense."

FEARS AT BOWEN.

Mr. Petersen, M.L.A., yesterday received the following telegram from Mr. H. Backenham, manager of the A.B.C. Bank at Bowen: "Grave fears for Messrs. Hatch, Gladwell, and Sharpe, who have homes near the Don and Dee Rivers near Dawson Valley. It is impossible to render them assistance for some days, as the rivers are uncrossable. There is no distress at Wowan or Deeford.

FATALITY AT ROCKHAMPTON.

BRISBANE, Saturday.

The body of Herbert Lindsey Fairlee, railway pumper at the Serpentine Pumping Station, Rockhampton, who was missing since Tuesday, was recovered yesterday morning near the Balmoral Hotel. The body was fully clothed. Fairlee was a married man, aged 31.

SUNKEN VESSELS.

Mr. Wareham, the Queensland inspector, and Captain Crossley, marine superintendent of the Adelaide Shipping Coy., will leave Brisbane by the Cooma on Tuesday for Mackay, and will take up salvage gear and labourers with the intention of salving the sunken and stranded tenders and lighters, and repairing the Adelaide Company's Mackay wharf and stores.

A THRILLING ESCAPE.

The Rev. W. J. V. Saville, a missionary, who was a passenger on a steamer, arrived in Sydney on Saturday morning by the Brisbane express.

"The vessel," he said to a "Herald" reporter, "had been on her usual trip. The weather indeed was such that we could make very little progress, and the captain, seeing two other boats at anchor in the Percy Islands, thought he would also run in for shelter. We lay there all Sunday, the weather having become worse; we appeared to be in about the middle of the cyclone. One of the other vessels was better sheltered than we were, but we did not go near to her for fear of endangering her. On Sunday night we drifted for a considerable distance, despite the fact that both anchors were down, so violent was the wind. On Monday morning, at about 4 o'clock, the captain found that he was being driven on to Pine Island. During all this time we could see nothing for the blinding rain and the mist. We were almost on top of Pine Island before we knew anything about it, and it was only the skilled seamanship of Captain Hillman and the work also of his officers and the crew that saved us.

"It was an exceedingly critical situation. No one expected to come out alive, but despite all there was no excitement among the passengers. The women were wonderfully calm, although the position was such that at 4.30 or 5 in the morning we were all told to put on our lifebelts—that was last Monday morning—the passengers waiting in the saloon merely for the word of the captain to get overboard in the boats. It would have been impossible for anyone to come out of the sea alive. The sea was mountainous, it was terrific. However Captain Hillman brought us out of it all safely. It was a marvellous escape, and the trip will live long in the memory of those on board. The accidents on the boat were surprisingly few, in all the circumstances. Slight damage was done to the ship. The ship, by the way, is a splendid seaboat. This was evidenced strikingly by the way she stood things. There were not many passengers aboard, but their calmness was most commendable.

RECRUITING.

STRAIGHT TALK BY OFFICERS

Mr. Donald Mackinnon, M.L.A., Director-General of Recruiting, held a conference of the recruiting officers of New South Wales at the headquarters, Commonwealth Bank-buildings, on Saturday morning. Thirty-nine officers attended, and in opening the conference the Director-General said that they had had a very strenuous work for the past 12 months, strenuous in many respects owing to the unsettled political condition. He felt that probably the condition would be very much better in the near future. In the past they were all hampered, because they were never certain when this political fighting would break out again. He wanted to know—and hoped they would speak quite freely—what was the attitude of the public with regard to recruiting, in each district—before and after the referendum, also the condition of their local committees. In many instances the rural population was mostly Irish, consequently the secretaries of local committees were also Irish. Where the secretary was a conscriptionist, the whole population were conscriptionists—and where he was an anti-conscriptionist, they were invariably "antis."

The recruiting officer of Hurstville said that if arrangements for the payment of allotments were made as they would be in any business house, no time would be lost, and there would be no complaints, but, as it was, the incapacity of the majority of those employed in the department simply made for procrastination and a totally unnecessary waste of time.

The recruiting officer of Goulburn informed the Director-General that he considered a great deal of blame rested on the censor's department in withholding news which was common property in England, and which the enemy was fully cognisant of. The recent exposure of the way news vital to Australia had been kept back, when it was known to all the rest of the English-speaking race, and to the Germans, was clear enough proof of the department's failure. If the censorship were cut out altogether and Australia was given the war news as given to the rest of the Empire, more enthusiasm would prevail as far as recruiting was concerned. In his opinion that which had the worst effect on recruiting was the treatment of alien enemies in Australia, also the treatment allotted to returned men. Everywhere people were complaining of the employment of eligible men in the military service. His opinion was that there should not be one man employed in the home service who had not been on active service. (Hear, hear.)

Captain Pike, organising secretary, Queensland Recruiting Committee, said that in his State very few eligibles were employed in the military, and wherever possible positions were filled by returned soldiers.

The recruiting officer for Inverell informed the Director-General that, as far as his electorate was concerned, anti-conscriptionists had always been hostile to anyone in khaki, and conscriptionists were hostile because they thought that recruiting efforts were useless. He voiced one very serious matter, and that was that, as must be the case in any army, there had been a certain number of incorrigibles in the A.I.F. These men had come back, and, unfortunately for Australia, had been granted returned soldiers' badges; wearing these they went about the country complaining of the manner in which they had been treated on their return, but did not inform those to whom they spoke that they had anything but "G." or "V.G." discharges.

The Redfern recruiting officer made the suggestion that the Government would be well advised to grant a pension to any totally disabled soldier equal to that given as the minimum wage in whichever walk of life he had been employed previous to enlistment.

Several other recruiting officers voiced similar opinions to those given above, and the officer in charge of Newtown made a direct appeal to the Director-General over the attitude of the local council. He said: "You say we have a Win-the-War Government. I absolutely deny this, when I find that the Government apparently is not strong enough to lift the embargo placed upon recruiting by the local council, which prohibits our holding meetings in a public place, viz., Newtown Bridge. What is more extraordinary is that special permission was granted at the time of the referendum that meetings for or against the referendum were to be allowed on the very spot from which recruiting meetings were barred. I cannot conceive how the present Government can call itself a Win-the-War Government when such a state of things is allowed to exist."

BAND CONTESTS.

SOUTH SYDNEY WINS THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

At the Sydney Sports Ground on Saturday night the concluding round of the interstate band contests, under the direction of the Band Association of New South Wales, resulted in South Sydney Model Band defeating Newtown for the A grade championship of Australia by one point.

The adjudicators placed the competitors in the following order.—

South Sydney Model (W. Ryder)	281
Newtown (E. P. Kerry)	280
Leichhardt District (T. Goodall)	279
Goulburn Light Horse (F. B. Wilson)	278
Rockdale Municipal (J. C. Walker)	252

The solo competitions held at Wesley Hall resulted as follows:—

E Flat Bass.—W. Easton (South Sydney), 1; P. Connelly (South Sydney), 2; R. Tougher (Lithgow Town), and W. S. Britcher (Lithgow), tied for third place.

Quartette.—Newtown (No. 1), 1; Leichhardt (No. 1), 2.

B Flat Cornet Championship of New South Wales.—W. Doherty (Ithaca, Queensland), 1; E. J. Griffith (Marrickville), 2; T. Sinclair (Newtown), 3.

Baritone Solo.—M. Edwards (South Sydney), 1; J. Tinker (Randwick), 2; J. Donnell (Drummoyne), 3.

Euphonium Solo.—N. Murray (Newtown), 1; T. Hetherton (South Sydney) and W. Wilson (Goulburn Light Horse), 2; F. Day (South Sydney), 3.

PATRIOTIC DISPLAY.

A large procession, comprising practically all the bands in the Band Association of New South Wales, started from Moore-street yesterday afternoon, and marched by way of George-street, Park-street, College-street, Oxford-street, and Flinders-street to the Sydney Sports Ground, accompanied by a large concourse of admirers of the various bands. Mr. F. Flowers, M.L.C., during the afternoon unveiled an honour roll containing the names of 400 bandsmen who have enlisted from New South Wales, and made an eloquent speech in performing the ceremony. The roll, which is of redwood, with the names in gold lettering, was draped with the Union Jack and flags of the Allies, and is for the time being placed in the Turner stand. Later, when the new stand is built, it will be permanently housed there. In all about 5000 persons were present.

WAR NOTES.

NO PEACE YET.

Count von Hertling's speech in the Reichstag, in reply to Mr. Lloyd George and President Wilson, is certainly not a "peace" speech, and it is quite evident that the military party dictated it. The voice is the voice of Hertling, but the hand is the hand of Hindenburg. It shows that in the conflict with Hindenburg and Ludendorff, urged on by the Pan-German element, the Chancellor and his Foreign Minister, Herr Kuhlmann, who were credited a little while ago with moderate views, have suffered defeat. It is a remarkable speech in many ways—remarkable for the demands it contains, for its avoidance of any reference to the evacuation of Belgium, for its adherence to the policy of annexations, remarkable for its bravado, or, as some may prefer to say, its bluff. With the failure of the Brest-Litovsk negotiations, and with something very much akin to revolution in Austria-Hungary, whilst there are also persistent reports of serious disturbances in Berlin, it must be admitted that it required some courage to stand up and make such a speech. But there it is. And on top of it comes a report from Petrograd that Austria is willing to make a separate peace with Russia, accepting a "democratic programme." As, however, the self-determination of nations—the point which Russia most strongly insists upon—is excluded from this programme, Count Czernin must have made the offer with his tongue in his cheek. Everything points to a revolution in Austria-Hungary, similar to that in Russia. The army is said to be demoralised, and Soviet organisations have been formed in Vienna and Budapest. As for the conditions in Russia, they appear to be going from bad to worse. The Don Cossacks have now joined in the revolution, and, with the assistance of the Workmen's and Peasants' Council, are seeking to make an end of General Kaledin, with the object of making the revolution complete. The Cossacks spring from the Little Russians, who inhabit the entire south of Russia, and they differ greatly from their northern brothers. They are the most excitable, the most hot-blooded, of all the Russians. The Cossacks still occupy their original home on the Don and in Caucasia, and they furnish the elite of the Russian army.

THE WESTERN FRONT.

Meanwhile, as Lord Curzon points out, the British and French forces on the western front are preparing for the greatest attack of all from the enemy. The spirit of our men, he adds, is excellent; the leaders of the nation regard the generals with confidence, and the supply of munitions is "enough and to spare." This is gratifying, and already there are signs of the coming attack. There are constant artillery duels—violent in places—whilst aircraft are unusually active. Judging by this morning's cables, it would appear that there is no question of our superiority in the air. General Haig furnishes a lengthy report, detailing numerous successful attacks by British airman on towns occupied by the enemy, special attention having been paid to railway stations and aerodromes. Many German machines were brought down, whilst several of our own were also lost. This appears to have been the biggest attack our airmen have yet made. When the great battle we are expecting really begins, however, we shall see air fighting on a scale never before approached, and it is just as well not to hold the enemy too cheaply. We know that Germany is putting forth prodigious efforts in the construction of battleplanes and aircraft of all kinds, and we know also that some time ago General Ludendorff, chief of the General Staff, issued a special order that no air-fighting machines were to be "thrown away" within good reason, as "the time was coming when they would all be required." It is hardly likely, however, that the Central Powers will be able to keep up with the joint efforts of Britain, France, Italy, and America. The statement has indeed been made that Germany is experiencing considerable difficulty in obtaining the special material required in certain parts of the machines, but it is dangerous to rely on such statements. There are many who hold that victory will be won in the air, and it is in this connection that America will play a leading role.

BURNS ANNIVERSARY.

The annual commemoration of the birthday of Robert Burns took place on Saturday, when in the afternoon there was a demonstration at the statute of the poet in the Domain, and at night a concert in the Protestant Hall. The commemoration was organised by the Burns Anniversary Club.

There was a fairly large attendance at the afternoon demonstration, and a couple of hours were devoted to speeches, the singing of songs of Burns by the Burns Anniversary Choir (which was conducted by Mr. W. Shearer), and selections by the Ashfield Pipe Band (in charge of Pipe-major Dixon). A large bay-leaf wreath, with the thistle, rose, and shamrock in the centre, and several wreaths of flowers were hung on the statue, from which also Scottish favours were suspended. The genesis of the commemoration was explained by the president of the club, Mr. David R. Rogers.

The principal speaker was Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart, who said that he was one of the few men—he would not be surprised if he were the only one—in Australia who had spoken to men who had spoken to Burns. Those men were old when he was a small boy. One of them followed the profession of a poacher, and so was not mentioned in Burns's biography; the other was Dr. Blackland, who took part in the transfer of Burns's body to the beautiful mausoleum, to which it was shifted from the original grave at Dumfries. The doctor on that occasion gathered some of the poet's hair, and had it made into a wig. The speaker had often wondered what had become of that wig. Burns's eminence as a conversationalist arose from the customs of the country. Dinner was very early in the afternoon—at about 3 o'clock or 4 o'clock—and, with long evenings to pass away, people foregathered, talked, and drank toddy. As a rule, the celebration of the King's birthday involved 21 toasts, after which the ladies were toasted about eight times. Burns became a marvellous conversationalist, and his jokes, toasts, and songs were daily quoted, though he was too careless in singing and saying what, when he was an exciseman, his superiors considered inappropriate. These impressions created misconception of his feeling towards the French revolution. But he was loyal, and it was on record that when war broke out he discharged his soldier's duties with the Dumfries volunteers with great fervour. His war songs acted on the soldiers of his day in much the same way as "Tipperary" did in the early days of the present war.

The Rev. Angus King, of Haberfield, said it seemed strange to ask a parson to say a good word about Burns, for Burns had never said a good word about parsons. But Burns did great service for Scotland, for it was he who first drove it home to the people that the very commonest folk—the obscurest workman, the homliest housewife, the poorest children—had the same hopes and fears, the same struggles and discipline, the same joys and sorrows as the rest of humanity. People did not believe there was anything good in the common folk until Burns wrote. Some good poets had written about it, but whilst they wrote from the outside Burns wrote with deep sympathy, and with knowledge of them. He sang about the people he knew. God intended Scotland to be a blessing to the world. It had been a blessing, and would continue to be. Australia was the finest country in the world—except Scotland. Australia had greater resources than England or Scotland ever had. But what were they going to make of Australia? What would Robert Burns say, if he were here, about life in this country that had done so much for its people? Burns would say that all wealthy advantages would go for nothing unless its people had brave, courageous, honest hearts; unless its men were true and its women pure. And, as Scotland had ever been in the forefront in character, Scotsmen in Australia were going to help make Australia as great and as widely known as Scotland.

Captain John Strachan also spoke.

The speakers were accorded a vote of thanks, on the proposition of Mr. M'Kinley, past president of the Burns Anniversary Club.

The concert in the Protestant Hall on Saturday night was largely attended. The programme was made up chiefly of Burns' songs interspersed with pipe selections by Master Alick Johnston, Scottish dances by Johnston's troupe, and humorous sketches by the Twa M'Colls. The Burns Anniversary Club Choir contributed four part-songs, and others who materially helped a very enjoyable programme were little Jeanie Deans, Misses Jessie Davis, and Jessie Sheath, Messrs. A. B. Richards, Richard M'Clelland, R. Hardy, R. Richards, R. Rogers, and D. Kennedy. Miss Agnes Chambers was accompanist, and Mr. W. Shearer musical director.

A collection was made for the Scottish Women's Hospitals, and about £10 was gathered.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR'S SPEECH

NO PEACE YET IN SIGHT

ENEMY'S ARROGANT TONE

LONDON, Jan. 26.

Count von Hertling, the German Chancellor, addressing the main committee of the Reichstag, said that the negotiations at Brest-Litovsk were proceeding slowly and with difficulty, but he clung to the hope of coming to an agreement with the Russians. The negotiations with the Ukrainians continued favourably, and he hoped soon to conclude a treaty mutually satisfactory, especially from the economic point of view.

The period in which the Entente might have co-operated in general peace negotiations had expired on the 3rd instant, after which date Germany was free to proceed for separate negotiations with Russia.

Mr. Lloyd George and President Wilson had since announced their war aims. Those expressed by Mr. Lloyd George showed an alteration in tone. They were no longer abusive, but showed an inclination to negotiate, although they did not show an earnest desire for peace. Mr. Lloyd George, while appreciating Germany's political, economic, and cultured position, adjudged her guilty of the worst possible crimes. "We cannot understand such feeling," said the Chancellor.

Count Hertling said that President Wilson's tone had changed since he replied to the Pope. He tried now to create dissension between the German Government and the people. He no longer talked of an autocratic German Government suppressing the people. He had not repeated his attacks on the House of Hohenzollern.

The Chancellor reviewed the situation before the war, stating that the alliance with Austria was purely defensive, and had never been misused for aggressive purposes. He declared that King Edward VII had endeavoured to create an enemy coalition.

THE COLONIAL QUESTION.

Count von Hertling, replying to President Wilson, said: "There will be some difficulty regarding the colonial question, because it is most important to England, but President Wilson's proposal could be considered in conjunction with Germany's demand for colonies. I believe it could be left to the greatest colonial Empire, namely, the British, to make up its mind concerning America's proposal. When such Anglo-American agreement was reached, we could see what agreement was possible at the peace negotiations from our side, since we also advocate a new construction of the colonial situation."

BELGIUM.

He added that the evacuation of Russia concerned only Russia and the Central Powers. The Belgian question could only be settled at the peace negotiations; but Germany had never demanded the violent incorporation of Belgian territory.

"Until the enemy unconditionally concedes the Central Powers' territorial integrity, I shall reject all proposals to remove the Belgian question from the joint general negotiations," he added.

Proceeding, he said that Northern France was a valuable pawn in Germany's hands. Germany did not wish for violent annexation. Conditions of evacuation must be arranged between France and Germany. There could not to be any talk of ceding Alsace-Lorraine. It was German in 1789 when France incorporated it, and 87 per cent. of the population now spoke German.

Count Hertling, in welcoming President Wilson's reference to the freedom of the seas, said: 'It is of the highest importance that England should abandon Gibraltar, Malta, Aden, Hongkong, the Falklands, and other strong naval points d'appui."

The settlement of Poland, he said, must be arranged by Germany and Austria alone. He did not anticipate difficulties respecting open diplomacy, the demolition of trade barriers, and reduction of armaments. Germany was ready to discuss the basis for a league of nations when all other questions had been settled.

POINTS FOR NEGOTIATION.

Count Hertling continued: "President Wilson's and Mr. Lloyd George's statements contain certain principles for a world peace to which Germany can also agree; and which can form points for negotiation, but where concrete questions are concerned the will of the Allies for peace is less observable. They speak as a conqueror to the conquered. The actual situation is that our position was never so favourable. If our enemies force us to continue, then they must take the consequences. If the Allies alter their programme of peace we will test it earnestly, for our aim is to reconstruct a durable and general peace. This is impossible while the lasting integrity of the German Empire, the security of its vital interests, and dignity of the Fatherland, are not ensured."

He concluded: "Our motto is to remain together calmly, and await events. We are entirely agreed in this aim. There may be varying opinions as to methods and conditions, but, through all differences, let us ever be mindful of the Fatherland's welfare, and a good peace will and shall come. German workers know how to differentiate between the realities of life and fantastic dreams. Such a nation cannot go under. God is with us, and will remain with us." (Cheers.)

Advices from Copenhagen state that the leaders of the Centre Party and National Liberals supported Count von Hertling.

SOCIALIST VIEW.

Herr Scheidemann (leader of the Majority Socialists), replying to Count von Hertling, declared that it was impossible for either side ever to compel the other to admit defeat.

He proceeded: "Let both sides give up their delusions. An agreement would be easily possible on eleven of President Wilson's points. England's war fever would end if one clear word was spoken about Belgium. Our duty demands an honourable and complete restoration of Belgium. Let us try and have a world free from bloodshed in the spring. The feeling among the German people is most serious. If the Government allow the Russian negotiations to break up, and hopes of peace in the West to be disappointed, what will happen then if not a catastrophe?"

A Copenhagen report says Herr Scheidemann regretted that Count Hertling had not regarded President Wilson's message as an honest declaration tending towards peace and declared definitely that Alsace-Lorraine must remain German. He added that the submarine war had proved unsuccessful, and had only drawn America into the war. General Hoffmann had adopted a wrong tone at Brest-Litovsk.

TEUTON OPINION

An Amsterdam message says Cologne reports stated that Count von Hertling's speech was well received in the more moderate German circles, where the fact that the Chancellor discussed President Wilson's speech seriatim is regarded as of considerable importance. Germany now believes that the Alsace question is finally settled, and that the legend of her plans for annexation in Belgium and France has been exploded.

The Independent Socialists and Conservatives reproach Count von Hertling for not defining the German war aims.

The Austrian press received the speech with marked coolness.

The Dutch press says the speech does not bring peace nearer. It rejects President Wilson's terms, except those advantageous to Germany.

AUSTRIA'S TERMS.

SPEECH BY COUNT CZERNIN.

A message from Paris states that Count Czernin (Austrian Foreign Minister), in a speech in the Reichsrath, said he did not intend to demand a single square mile of Russian territory nor a single centime of indemnity.

Count Czernin said the daily publication of reports of the negotiations at Brest-Litovsk caused nervousness among the people. He had decided to continue the negotiations on the basis of no annexations and no indemnities.

Count Czernin added: "The population of Poland shall decide their own fate. This question must not delay peace a single day. The interpretation of the people's right of free action has caused a difference between Russia and Germany, but a compromise must be reached. The difference is insufficient to cause the cessation of negotiations. When peace with Russia is secured, a world peace cannot be prevented."

President Wilson's speech, he said, was an important advance towards the Austrian standpoint, but Austria would support Germany and Turkey to the utmost. Austria would reject all advice on domestic affairs. Austria and America practically agreed on the great principles of a new world settlement after the war, and their views on several concrete questions of peace approached agreement. Their differences were insufficient to prevent a complete agreement, and exchanges of Austro-American views might form a starting point for conciliatory discussion between all the States which had not yet entered into negotiations.

A Copenhagen message states that Herr von Kuhlmann (German Foreign Minister), speaking in the Reichstag, said: "Our relations with Austria-Hungary are the cornerstone of our policy. We are in full agreement. Count Czernin will never support a policy calculated to undermine our relations."

AUSTRIAN PEACE FEELER.

It is reported from Washington that Count Czernin is making overtures to the United States for peace.

It is believed that Count Czernin's overtures are merely in the nature of an academic feeler.

THE POPE'S VIEW.

The United Press correspondent at Rome says the Vatican regards Count Czernin's speech as a positive step towards peace.

NOT FOR PEACE.

OPINION IN ENGLAND.

The English newspapers characterise Count von Hertling's speech as insolent, bombastic, and arrogant. The wily Hun's idea is to negotiate with each enemy separately. The speech bangs the door in the face of peace.

The newspapers are particularly indignant at Germany regarding Belgium and Northern France as pawns. They ridicule the idea that Gibraltar and Hongkong should be ceded. The tone of Hertling's and Czernin's speeches differs, but it is evident that the two Counts are playing a gigantic game of spoof.

The "Globe" points out that Hertling's speech is defiance throughout. Every one of the Allies' terms is spurned. Czernin's words are more honeyed, but Austria still nods to whatever Germany says.

Lord Robert Cecil (Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs), interviewed, said: "Count von Hertling's speech is very warlike. As expected, he has come out strong on the military side. No doubt Hindenburg and Ludendorff virtually dictated his speech."

Saturday's newspapers generally regard Count von Hertling and Count Czernin's speeches as a joint performance, initiating a peace offensive.

The "Daily Telegraph" says: "There is no real divergence, although the condition of Austria compels Count Czernin to adopt a milder tone. The declarations contribute nothing to the pacification of Europe. The militarists of Berlin are still in the saddle."

The "Morning Post" says: "Count Hertling's proposal that the United States should help to remove the pillars of British sea-power is the most impudent and extraordinary that one belligerent ever preferred to another. The acceptance of the German terms would involve giving up our main naval bases on the seaboards to the east, and cause the dissolution of the Empire. If Germany wants Gibraltar and the rest she must take them."

THE DOOR NOT SHUT.

The "Daily News" says: "Count von Hertling's speech does not offer a basis for peace, but it does not shut the door." The same newspaper, discussing Count Czernin's suggestion for definite negotiations with America, says: "Direct conversations between President Wilson and Count Czernin would enable the belligerents to file down their differences to a minimum. The situation holds rich possibilities for prudent single-minded statesmanship."

Lord Haldane, in a speech at Glasgow, said Count von Hertling's and Count Czernin's remarkable utterances indicated that we were entering upon a new period of talk about peace. It was clear that Germany and Austria wanted peace badly. We should thresh out the matter as a business proposition. Experience had taught that conference made a matter clearer.

OPINIONS IN AMERICA.

In Washington Count Hertling's speech is regarded as indicating the militarists still control German diplomacy, whose arrogant claims are intended to deceive the world regarding Germany's real weakness and desire for peace.

Count Czernin's statement is interpreted to mean that Germany cannot rely on Austria's support for war conquest. The speeches make peace more remote. America adheres absolutely to President Wilson's war aims.

The New York "Evening Post" says the speeches of Hertling and Czernin show a growing divergence of German and Austrian views. "The Austrian worm is turning."

The newspapers point out the significance of Austrian moderation as evidencing internal dissension and war weariness. The New York "Times" comments: "Czernin unmistakably makes peace overtures, but Hertling's impudent address reads like a lecture by Treitschke."

The "Herald": "Hertling will hradly be seeks to allay German peace clamour while appeasing the pan-Germans. The Allies must answer with shrapnel. The world has no evidence that Germany is seeking an honourable peace, but the Chancellor's moderate tones show that the old-time Prussian defiance is crushed under Allied diplomacy. Germany once refused to discuss peace publicly, but now brazenly reverses her policy."

The "Herald": "Hertling will hardly be heard outside an insane asylum. His speech must be intended solely for home consumption. Germany is still a blood-mad brute, craving for a place in the sun."

FRENCH COMMENT.

A Paris message says M. Marcel Hutin states that the Allies are exchanging views for the purpose of making a joint reply to Count von Hertling and Count Czernin.

"La Victoire" urges the Allies to address their reply to the German people, declaring that they will not negotiate with the Hohenzollerns.

The "Petit Journal" says: "Hertling's speech proves that Germany never was further removed from democracy. Czernin's clever, supple speech proves that the Austrian Empire is an enfeebled organism, menaced politically by divergent nationalities and socially by the people's immense misery."

The Paris correspondnt of the New York "Times" says that the French view is that the speech contains first signs of real cleavage between the Central Powers, and brings peace nearer.

BREST-LITOVSK.

CONFERENCE TO RESUME.

LONDON, Jan. 26.

A Petrograd message says the Brest-Litovsk negotiations have been postponed, and will be resumed on the 29th.

It is reported from Petrograd that Austria has declared her readiness to conclude peace without Germany, and accept a democratic programme, except the self-determination of nations.

A Petrograd message says that General Hoffmann brutally expressed Germany's terms for peace at Brest-Litovsk, stating that Germany's future Eastern frontier would be from Riga through Valk, Dvinsk, and Brest.

A Russian delegate asked what would happen if Russia refused.

General Hoffmann replied that Reval would be occupied within a week. He added that the southern boundaries had been arranged between Germany and the Ukraine.

It appears that Germany promised the Ukraine liberal boundaries at the expense of Russia. Peace is conditional upon the Ukraine supplying breadstuffs to Germany.

RIVAL UKRAINIANS.

Advices from Berlin state that an embarrassing complication has arisen at Brest-Litovsk. A second Ukrainian delegation has arrived there, and denies that the previous delegation was entitled to negotiate on behalf of the Ukraine Republic, of which the real Government is established at Charkoff, and professes Maximalist principles. The second delegation from Charkoff supports Trotsky.

SHADOW OF REVOLT.

IN AUSTRIA AND GERMANY.

The correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" at Amsterdam says persistent rumours in reliable quarters indicate serious disorders in Berlin. It is significant that there were no telegrams from Berlin on Thursday except those reporting Count von Hertling's speech, which were greatly delayed, and came by an unusual route, via Aix-la-Chapelle. The few newspapers arriving indicate, despite censorings, a strained situation.

An Amsterdam message says that peace demonstrators broke up meetings of the Fatherland Party in Frankfort-on-Main, shouting "Long live freedom and peace," and singing the "Marseillaise."

A Berne message says thousands of women and children daily are holding demonstrations at Cracow. Bread is unobtainable. The authorities have appealed to Dr. von Seidler (whose resignation as Premier was reported) for assistance.

An Amsterdam report says the "Berliner Tageblatt" states that the general strike at Budapest commenced on the morning of January 18, Honved Bosnian soldiers, with machine guns, surrounded the inner city and strongly occupied all the bridges. The strikers, who were massed in the outer portions of the capital, were not allowed to enter the inner city. Street traffic was entirely suspended, and the ships were closed. Thirty members of the Labourers', Soldiers', and Students' Union were arrested before the strike.

THE GOEBEN.

TOTAL LOSS CONSIDERED CERTAIN.

It is considered in naval circles that the Turkish battle-cruiser Goeben, which is ashore in the Dardanelles, is certain to become a total loss. The tide runs between 1½ and 4 knots, and the continuous aerial bombardment will render salvage very difficult. Airmen sank a small steamer alongside the Goeben. The latter's stern is under water.

The Admiralty reports: Ceaseless aerial attacks are being made on the Goeben. Seven tons of bombs have been dropped on and around the ship in the past 48 hours. Direct hits were also secured on an aerodrome at Galata.

A Turkish cruiser which accompanied the Goeben has gone up the Straits. We compelled a steamer lightening the Goeben to desist. Our only casualty was a Greek officer shot down.

The operation is continuing.

U-BOAT CAMPAIGN.

CANARY ISLANDS BLOCKADED

A Madrid message reports that German submarines are literally blockading the Canary Islands, and are not sparing Spanish ships. The islanders are protesting against Germany extending the danger zone.

INCREASED SHIPBUILDING.

The Admiralty has issued a diagram showing that the shipbuilding output of March, 1916, had increased fourfold by September, 1917, and sevenfold by December, 1917.

LOST ENEMY WARSHIPS.

Survivors from the German destroyers, which struck mines, state that they were sunk 60 miles to the eastward of Heligoland. A high sea was running at the time, and the whole of the crew of one destroyer was lost. Eighteen of the crew of the other boarded a lifeboat, and suffered terribly from exposure. One died. The survivors sighted a German petrol boat, which did not attempt their rescue.

PORT OF LONDON.

A deputation of London members of the House of Commons, when interviewing the Shipping Controller to-day with reference to the report that the Port of London is to be closed to merchant shipping, pointed out that it would cause a vast dislocation of labour and trade, and seriously interfere with the feeding of London.

The Shipping Controller assured the deputation that there never would be any question of closing the Port of London. Ships lately had been sent to western ports in increasing numbers, but London would be used to the fullest extent consistent with the safety of national supplies.

BOLSHEVIKISM.

THE PLIGHT OF RUSSIA.

BLOODSHED IN MOSCOW.

LONDON, Jan. 26.

The "Daily Chronicle's" Petrograd correspondent on Friday telegraphed:—The Bolsheviks are tottering amid the ruin they have helped to create. Blind, senseless anarchy threatens to overwhelm all parties. Anarchical insubordination is prevalent among the armed masses, particularly the sailors and Red Guards, but the working classes are exhibiting a strong revulsion of feeling against the Bolsheviks. They are holding meetings in factories, passing resolutions of no-confidence in the Bolsheviks, deciding to recall their representatives from the Soviet, and demanding the disbanding of the Red Guard.

Serious disturbances occurred at Moscow, where two revolver shots were fired at an armed Bolshevik procession. This caused a panic, the Bolsheviks firing wildly, and killing and wounding many women and children.

A Petrograd report says the Congress of Russian Soviets, which is replacing the Constituent Assembly, accorded an ovation to Chicherin and Petroff, who came from England, where they had been interned. Trotsky said the Constituent Assembly's object was to dissolve the Soviets, but the Soviets had dissolved it.

Advices from Haparanda state that three Guards' regiments have joined the side of the Constituent Assembly, and have opened hostilities against the Bolsheviks.

A soldier named Buskoff and two sailors, Rasine and Koulikovoky, have been arrested in connection with the murders of M. Shungaroff and M. Kokoshkin.

Polish regiments are disobeying the democratisation order for the election of commanders. Krylenko, the Bolshevik commander, has arrested the executive of the Polish Military Committee at Minsk.

The United Press correspondent at Petrograd states that Maxim Gorky, the author, has been wounded by a stray rifle shot.

A report from Petrograd says 40 were killed and 200 wounded in the Moscow disturbances.

The Bolsheviks are contemplating a formal declaration of war against the Ukrainians. It is reported that Bolshevik troops have surrounded Kieff.

EXCESSES IN FINLAND.

Advices from Stockholm state that many trains full of soldiers from Finland are going to Petrograd. The Bolsheviks are concentrating troops, expecting disturbances as a result of the recent brutal murders. The head of the Bolshevik Chancellor's Office told the Workmen and Soldiers' Council that a great massacre is impending, in which the working classes would definitely and for ever crush the Bourgeoisie.

There is considerable fighting in Finland between the Red Guards and Finnish White Guards. Bloodshed occurred in Viborg, Kuchava, and Oesterbotten. Excesses of the Red Guards continue at Helsingfors and other towns.

A Copenhagen report says the semi-official Finnish agency states that there have been grave revolts during the past few days, chiefly at Viborg, where Russian soldiers participated. A general strike has been proclaimed. The Finnish Government protested to the Russian Government, and demanded the withdrawal of the Russian soldiers. The authorities are stopping the railways in order to prevent the movement of Russian troops.

THE COSSACKS, TOO.

PROLETARIAN REVOLT.

(Admiralty—Per Wireless Press.)

A wireless Russian message says: A congress of Cossacks from the front was inaugurated at Kamensky on January 23. Twenty-three regiments and five batteries were represented, also all participants at the Voronez conference of labouring Cossackdom. General Kaledin ordered the dispersal of the congress, and the arrest of the organisers. The congress unanimously passed a resolution of war against Kaledin, relegating to itself all authority on the Don, and sent out detachments for the purpose of capturing Likhaia and Zvevero. They arrested eighteen superior officers. The Cossacks are fired by enthusiasm. They are striving to end Kaledin with the assistance of the army of the Workmen's and Peasants' Government, with the object of destroying Bourgeois Russia on the Don, and leading to victory the great revolution.

EFFECT ON AUSTRIANS.

TROOPS DEMORALISED.

A Petrograd report says the Bolshevik newspapers state that there were great demonstrations over the whole of Austria-Hungary. Soviet organisations have been formed in Vienna and Budapest. A big strike has begun at Warsaw.

According to the "Daily Chronicle" correspondent at Petrograd, returning officers from the south-west front state that the Austrian army is demoralised completely showing a collapse of discipline like the Russian armies.

THE FAR EAST.

A Tokio message states that the Premier, Marshal Terauchi, in the course of a speech, said that Japan holds herself responsible for the maintenance of peace in the Far East. If it is endangered she will not hesitate to take proper measures. He observed with anxiety internal disorders in Russia, which threaten peace in the Far East. Japan's relations with Britain and her Allies were constantly being strengthened.

THE LABOUR CONGRESS.

The Labour Congress at Nottingham has concluded its sittings.

The Congress unanimously passed a resolution demanding the withdrawal of conscription after the war.

The Congress passed a strong resolution regarding inadequate food supplies, profiteering, and the necessity for real equality of sacrifice between all classes.

Mr. J. R. Clynes (Parliamentary Secretary to the Food Control Department) outlined the Government's action in regard to the food supply. He insisted that the greatest need of the country was to maintain national unity and national composure.

Resolutions advocating conscription of wealth and the release of all conscientious objectors were carried.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, in justifying Labour's support of the Coalition Government, said that if it were broken up it would lead to an immediate general election upon a register not only stale but rotten. They could get rid of the coalition directly they got peace.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

A Copenhagen report says the stoppage of importations of materials into Denmark has resulted in industrial stagnation. There are 50,000 unemployed.

The English Law Society has passed a resolution in favour of instituting a Ministry of Justice to supervise and maintain legal machinery.

A court-martial at Nantes sentenced to death two women, Manuela Alvarez and Hictorine Faucher; also Pelissier, an army deserter, who has not been arrested. Giton, a sailor, was sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

AGAINST TURKEY.

BRITISH PREPARE NEW BLOW

LONDON, Jan. 27.

The New York "World's" Washington correspondent says information reaching the authorities indicates that the British are aiming a new blow against Turkey. The British are said to be advancing towards Erzerum, with the purpose of attacking in the north, while General Allenby makes a simultaneous offensive in Palestine. The result is likely to drive Turkey out of the war.

PALESTINE.

AIRMEN DO GOOD WORK.

An official report from Palestine states: Our aeroplanes bombed camps and depots westward of Sebustieh, scoring several direct hits. They also surprised 2000 troops in close formation southwards of Nablus, and dropped half a ton of bombs on them before they could disperse. They also bombed a camp of mounted troops, stampeding the animals.

The War Office reports that the Arabs captured a Turkish convoy eastward of Medina.

OPERATIONS REVIEWED.

A "Gazette" publishes a despatch from General Allenby covering the British operations in Palestine from June 28, 1917, to the fall of Jerusalem.

It emphasises the transport difficulties and shortage of water. The routes for transport were extremely limited, and practically the whole of the available transport, including 30,000 camels, had to be allotted for one portion of the Eastern forces.

Before the fall of Gaza the enemy, who was very strongly entrenched, kept guessing as to the whereabouts of the intended main attack, namely at Hareira and Sheria. Therefore a large scale of operations against Gaza was prepared. There was a most rapid consolidation of British gains in the passes of the Judean hills before the Turks could rally. That ensured the surrender of Jerusalem. These passes are historical for causing the defeat of many previous invading armies.

THE AUSTRALIANS.

General Allenby's despatch includes the following references to the Australians. Dealing with the capture of Beersheba on October 31, he states: Small parties made attempts to advance across the plain towards the town. It was slow progress, but in the evening an attack by the Australian Light Horse, who rode straight at the town from the East, was completely successful. They galloped over two deep trenches just outside the town, captured numerous prisoners, and completed the Turkish defeat.

The Australian mounted force on November 11 extended over a wide front and protected the flank of the advance guard of the 52nd Division, which was close to Burkah. The Australians on the following day pressed forward to Balin, Berkusie, and Telessafi. The advanced forces were counter-attacked and driven back a short distance, but the enemy made no effort to press forward.

We decided to attack on the 13th. The country is open, and rolling with small villages, enclosed by mud walls, with patches of trees outside the walls. The most prominent feature is a line of heights, where the enemy villages of Katrah and El Mughar stand out. Here a most determined resistance was offered against the turning movement. The capture of the position by the 52nd Division, assisted by the mounted force, which came at a dashing gallop across the plain, under a heavy fire, which turned the enemy's position from the north, was a fine feat of arms. 1100 prisoners and three guns being captured.

The New Zealand Mounted Rifles on November 14 had a smart engagement at Ayunkara, six miles south of Jaffa. The Turks counter-attacked determinedly, and got within 15 yards of our line. A bayonet attack drove them back, with heavy loss.

Our infantry commenced the advance towards Jerusalem on November 19, one portion advancing along the main road towards Kurya-el-Enab, with the Australian mounted force protecting their right flank. Kurya-el-Enab was captured on the 20th. The enemy's attack on the 29th penetrated our outpost line, north-east of Jaffa. The Australian Light Horse next morning surrounded and captured a whole hostile detachment, numbering 150. A similar fate befell an enemy battalion attacking near El Burj. The Australians' counter-attacked, and practically destroyed an attacking battalion, capturing 200 prisoners.

The despatch mentions that General Sir Harry Chauvel commanded the mounted forces, with invariable success in attack and pursuit. His co-operation with other arms was always ready and loyal, and contributed greatly to our victory.

EAST AFRICA.

An official report from East Africa on Friday stated: We have reached Nanunya, 50 miles inland from Port Welia.

HONOUR REGAINED.

In regard to the reinstatement of Lieut.-Colonel E. P. England in the Royal Horse Artillery, it is stated that he lost his commission during the retreat from Mons in 1914, while commanding an ammunition column. After marching five days and nights with only an hour's sleep, when the night was pitch dark and the horses were reduced to a walking pace, a staff officer galloped up, saying, "If you don't get a hustle on you will be surrounded." England, thinking to save the column, told the men to throw away some of the ammunition. This was discovered. England was court-martialled, and later joined the South African Horse. He went through the South African campaign, and after being invalided home he was transferred to the Devonshires. He fought in several battles in France, and was twice wounded. He is now unfit for further service.

COLONEL REPINGTON.

Colonel Repington's letter of resignation to the "Times" appears in the "Morning Post." It states: "I feel our present critical position is largely due to the subservient and apologetic attitude of the "Times" towards the present War Cabinet, permitting neglect of the vital interests of the army, particularly in regard to men. My articles containing various criticism, and some of my letters, have not appeared. Whole passages in others have been removed without reference to me, which I consider dishonest to the public and unfair to me. Reiterated protests have not brought assurances that such practices will cease. I have reluctantly come to the conclusion that the vital interests of the army are not secure in the hands of the "Times," leaving me no option but to sever my connection."

THE IRISH QUESTION.

The Press Bureau states that at the thirty-sixth meeting of the Irish Convention Sir Horace Plunkett read a letter from the Premier stating that before a decision was reached by the Convention on certain issues, he and his colleagues would be happy to confer with leading representatives of the Convention. The Convention adjourned to select members to meet the Cabinet.

Sir Edward Carson will address a private conference of officials of the Ulster Unionist party at Belfast on February 5.

FOOD PROBLEM.

SACRIFICES DEMANDED.

TO WIN THE WAR.

LONDON, Jan. 27.

Lord Rhondda (Food Controller), addressing farmers at Newport, appealed to them to make sacrifices to enable the country to win the war. During one week in December submarines had destroyed 3,000,000lb of bacon and 4,000,000lb of cheese. The shortage of meat would continue for some time, causing inconvenience and privation, but not anything like to the disastrous extent of Germany's shortage. Britain's position as regards wheat was not acute now. It might be acute in a few months.

It is understood that the London Home Counties' ration scheme allows weekly 1lb of meat for adults and 8oz for children under 6 years.

The meat shortage this week-end was the most acute recorded. Queues assembled at Smithfield at 5 a.m. on Saturday, and the stalls were cleared out before noon. Latecomers secured only liver, sheep's kidneys, and tinned meats. There were many queues in the suburbs and the provinces. Six thousand workers at Peterborough downed tools in protest against the food shortage. A procession marched to a ground, where speakers urged that the strike should continue until food supplies were adequate. Tons of diseased meat reaching Smithfield from Ireland were condemned as unfit for consumption.

AMERICA HELPS.

A message from Washington says Lord Rhondda, speaking on behalf of the British, French, and Italian Governments, sent the following cable to Mr. Hoover (United States Food Administrator): "Unless you are able to send the Allies 75,000,000 bushels of wheat above what you have exported to February 1, irrespective of Canadian exports, I cannot take the responsibility of assuring our people there will be sufficient food to win the war. It now lies with America to decide whether the Allies shall have enough food to hold out until the Americans take the field."

Mr. Hoover has replied:—"We will export every grain America saves out of her normal consumption. We will not fail to meet the emergency."

Mr. Hoover stated that America already has exported 60,000,000 bushels, but it is absolutely necessary for the country to reduce its present consumption by 30 per cent.

A Washington message says President Wilson has issued a proclamation asking Americans to reduce wheat consumption by 30 per cent. and to observe Mondays and Wednesdays as wheatless days, Tuesdays as meatless days, and Saturday as a porkless day; also to have one meatless and one wheatless meal daily. President Wilson declared: "Sacrifice is necessary to meet our great responsibility, as Europe's subsistence rests very largely upon our shoulders."

Mr. Hoover has announced that the bakers hereafter will make "victory bread" which must not contain more than 80 per cent. of wheat. He has also announced that the Government will purchase 30 per cent. of the nation's flour output, totalling 3,000,000 barrels monthly, for exportation to the Allies.

SOUTH AFRICA'S WHEAT.

A Capetown report says that, speaking at the dinner of the Tobacco Growers' Conference, the Minister of Agriculture stated that as the result of a special appeal to the farming community to sow more wheat, advance reports showed that a million more bags of wheat had been produced than in the previous year.

FOOD RIOTS IN SPAIN.

A cablegram from Madrid states that martial law has been declared at Barcelona owing to strikes and disorders arising from the high prices of food.

MAN-POWER SCHEME.

ENGINEERS THREATEN TROUBLE.

The Amalgamated Society of Engineers persist in their attitude of declining to participate in the conference on the Man-Power Bill. Sir Auckland Geddes is equally firm, and the deadlock is drifting towards a crisis.

The "Daily News" fears that the situation will lead to a strike involving 200,000.

Sir Auckland Geddes stated in the House of Commons that he emphatically refused to negotiate with the Engineers separately. He said that other unions negotiating for a comb-out were opposed to a hole-and-corner conference. All the unions participated in the 1916 agreement. The Government intended to go on with the bill. (Cheers.)

The bill was read a third time.

The first clear-out in connection with the new man-power policy will operate on February 1. It will comb out from the all-general services all men under 24.

A correspondent in the "Daily Telegraph," replying to Colonel Repington's criticism on the man-power proposals of the Government, points out that one out of every four men in the United Kingdom have entered the army. We hold the seas for our Allies, and supply them with an increasing volume of ships, munitions, and food. The defeat of Germany's submarining is the most essential problem. Calculations of fighting strength on the basis of divisions are misleading, because a German division is from 30 to 35 per cent. weaker than a British division.

The correspondent recalls Sir Auckland Geddes' assertion that the Allies have a substantial superiority in fighting strength and ration strength. A quarter of a million youths reached military age in 1917. The comb-out would produce over 100,000 soldiers. Ministers had unanimously decided that these sources would supply the army's maximum requirements after a modest re-adjustment of the existing strength and careful economy in casualties.

ARMY AWAITS FOE.

ATTACKS ON LEADERS DEPLORED.

Lord Curzon, in a speech at Cardiff, said that our forces in the West were preparing for the greatest attack the enemy has yet delivered. The spirit of the men was excellent. There was enough munitions and to spare. The leaders of the nation regarded the generals with confidence. He had no patience with the foul, cruel attacks made by certain newspapers upon leading soldiers. They were calumnious and unworthy of a great nation. He did not know what was their inspiration, but he believed, and he thought his colleagues believed, that they were destitute of fairness and justice.

A peace consistent with honour and safety could not be obtained at present, he added. If the people accepted an inconclusive peace they would hang the millstone of German militarism around their necks.

UNITED STATES.

Mr. Baker (Minister of War) announces that he intends to address the Senate Committee detailing America's progress in the war.

It is officially announced in Washington that the Government has appointed Mr. E. J. Stettinius as Surveyor-General for all army purchases. Mr. Stettinius has been long associated with Mr. J. P. Morgan, and completely controlled the Allied purchases in the United States. New sweeping powers make him virtually the Munitions Director.

A Washington report states that the Senate Military Committee has published the secret testimony of Congressman M'Cormick, who gave evidence that the Allies were apprehensive regarding American war aid. The British and French Governments in October cabled to Colonel House urging him to visit Europe for the purpose of securing better co-ordination.

BRITISH AIRMEN.

RAID GERMAN TOWNS.

LONDON, Jan. 27.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting on Friday night, regarding aviation, stated: There is growing activity on the northern front. We dropped over 300 bombs at Courtrai, Ledeghem, and Douai railway stations, on an aerodrome at Courtrai, and billets westward of Cambrai. One pilot machine gunned a hangar at Douai. We brought down seven enemies, and five others went down out of control. Two of our machines are missing, one of which was seen to collide with an enemy during combat.

Our night-fliers bombed aerodromes and billets at Ghent, Courtrai, and Roulers. All returned.

We also bombed Mannheim factories, hitting a factory, the docks, and town. We also bombed the barracks and railway station at Reves, steel works at Thionville, and railway stations at Saarbrucken and Oberbillig. Our pilots report large explosions on all their objectives. There was a large fire at Treves.

One of our machines is missing.

Sir Douglas Haig's aviation report on Saturday night stated: Our aeroplanes bombed large railway sidings at Courtrai and billets at Roulers. There was hard fighting all along the line, greatly in our favour. We brought down 10, and drove down six. One of ours is missing. Our night-fliers last night dropped eight tons, bombing five large aerodromes in the neighbourhood of Ghent, and billets in the vicinity of Douai. They dropped 160 bombs on a new aerodrome westward of Tournai. All returned.

The Admiralty report: Our aircraft bombed and hit an aerodrome at Verssenaere on Thursday. All our machines returned. During patrols on Wednesday we destroyed two enemies, and shot down two, uncontrollable. One of our machines is missing.

WESTERN FRONT.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at noon on Friday, stated: Hostile artillery is active in the neighbourhoods of La Vacquerie and Fasschendaele.

Sir Douglas Haig on Friday night reported: We captured positions in patrol encounters southward of Lens. The enemy raided a post eastward of Loos.

There has been hostile artillery fire at Flesquieres, Bullecourt, Baillieul, and Poelcapelle.

Sir Douglas Haig on Saturday afternoon reported: We captured a few prisoners in patrol encounters south-westward of Cambrai. Hostile artillery has been active in the Scarpe Valley.

Sir Douglas Haig's final report on Saturday night stated: The enemy raided a post southward of Fontaine-les-Croiselles.

An enemy party was driven out northward of Passchendaele.

Hostile artillery has been active at Havrincourt and Poelcapelle.

A French communique on Saturday stated: There was a lively artillery duel at Caurieres Wood, where an enemy raid failed.

A French communique on Saturday night stated: There have been artillery actions, sometimes violent, in the Butte-du-Mesnil and Mort Homme sectors. There has been no infantry action. Our anti-aircraft guns downed three German machines on Friday.

AMERICAN ARMY.

The New York "World's" Paris correspondent inspected the American army in France, and cables that General Pershing's troops have made remarkable progress. They are now a formidable war machine, ready to assist the Allies. It is believed that America will soon begin actual fighting.

THE HIGH COMMAND.

CONTROVERSY IN ENGLAND.

A message from Montreal says that Sir F. E. Smith (British Attorney-General), in the course of a speech at the Canadian Club, said that Colonel Repington's allegations in the London "Times," to the effect that the War Cabinet interfered with Sir Douglas Haig's plans, were unfounded. Sir Douglas Haig and other generals were given greater freedom to conduct the campaign than ever in history. Members of the Cabinet had full confidence in Sir Douglas Haig and his associates.

MYSTERIOUS FIRE.

A New York report states that seven United States army department warehouses, and several municipal docks, were destroyed by a fire of mysterious origin at an Atlantic port. The storehouses were empty. A large shipbuilding plant was saved after strenuous efforts by the firemen.

A Newport message says a torpedo manufactory explosion of mysterious origin killed eight and injured seven.

BRITAIN'S MANUFACTURES.

The Press Bureau states that Dr. Addison (Minister for Reconstruction) has appointed a committee of manufacturers and business men to compile a list of articles suitable for manufacture which were not made in Britain before the war. A labour advisory panel of skilled and unskilled workers will join in co-operating.

A MODEL SUBURB.

NEWCASTLE, Saturday.

A start has been made with the erection of the first brick cottage of a model suburb facing Maitland-road, and on the eastern side of Tighe's Hill, by Mr. A. Nonmus. It is intended that a hundred of these buildings shall be erected to meet the growing demand in this district.

JAVA SERVICE.

PERTH, Saturday.

The Perth Chamber of Manufactures has been informed through the Premier, in reply to its protest against New South Wales subsidising a steamer service to Java, that the Federal Solicitor-General's opinion is that this subsidy is not a bounty under the Federal Constitution Act, and that the Federal Government has no control.

UNION COMPANY.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Sunday.

Mr. D. Carter, of Greymouth, has been appointed manager of the Union Company at Fiji in succession to Mr. Eva; Mr. P. N. Jefferys, branch manager at New Plymouth, has been appointed to Greymouth; and Mr. D. Morrison, sub-manager at Rarotonga, goes to New Plymouth.

COAL EXPORTS.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The interstate coal exports for the week ending to-day totalled 42,140 tons, of which 23,590 tons were for Victoria, 11,000 for South Australia, 5380 for Queensland, and 2170 for Tasmania. The exports for the previous week amounted to 62,506 tons.

CORNSACKS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

In an order issued last night under the War Precautions Act, the usual powers are conferred upon the Chief Prices Commissioner (Mr. Whitton) to inquire into the supply and prospects of, supply of, trade in, and prices charged for cornsacks.

LATE WAR NEWS.

WEST FRONT.

BRITISH LINE EXTENDED.

LONDON, Jan. 27.

Recent references in official communiques, indicating an extension of the British front, are confirmed. A new section has been taken over from the French. Our line now covers St. Quentin.

SHORTAGE OF FOOD.

UNREST IN ENGLAND.

The Lord Mayor of Manchester told a deputation which demanded equal distribution of food that their agitation was unnecessary. All that was possible was being done to remove existing difficulties.

Mr. Hartshorn, the Welsh miners' leader, is appealing to the workers to be calm. "Riotous crowds," he says, "cannot establish and maintain the delicate system of distribution. Looting will only intensify the scarcity. Constitutional pressure by trade-unions can alone secure food reform. If crowds rush the shops the result will be chaos, and will wreck national unity in the face of a powerful, pitiless enemy."

Mounted police and special constables were called out at Tottenham and Edmonton to control mile-long queues. At Bootle a crowd stoned a food department official who was making an effort to commandeer margarine.

U-BOAT'S FATE.

A Paris message says a French dirigible threw several bombs on a submarine. Hits were observed to unsteady her, and a minesweeper thereupon fired shots which apparently took effect, a large oil patch remaining where the U-boat had been.

GERMANS MUTINY.

A Zurich report states that 200 invalided soldiers who interrupted the meeting of the Fatherland party in Berlin were arrested. The news of their arrest caused indignation among the garrison, culminating in mutiny, at Friedrichsdorf, near Berlin. As a result 8000 men are confined to barracks. The ringleaders have been imprisoned.

TROUBLE IN SPAIN.

A Madrid report says troops were called out to quell disturbances at Barcelona. Telegraphic and telephonic communication is interrupted. Many industries are closed.

ABSENT AUSTRALIANS.

CONDITIONS OF ENLISTMENT.

LONDON, Jan. 27.

A concert at the Anzac Buffet was largely attended, principally by wounded men. In the evening 500 attended a concert and dance of the A.N.A. at Connaught Rooms. Addresses were given by Sir John M'Call (Agent-General for Tasmania) and Mr. Fisher (High Commissioner). Sir John M'Call strongly appealed to Mr. Hughes to allow Australians temporarily absent from the Commonwealth to join the Australian forces instead of the British. This was loudly cheered.

Mr. Fisher eulogised the magnificent work and hospitality of the A.N.A. in England. He said what had struck him most during his visit to Cambridge was the cheers for the Commonwealth, which were even more enthusiastic than cheers for the King, showing that the Commonwealth was the real home of their affections.

OFFICERS IN TRAINING.

AUSTRALIANS AT CAMBRIDGE.

LONDON, Jan. 26.

Australia Day was celebrated in London and Cambridge. Mr. Fisher (High Commissioner), Major-General M'Cay, Colonel Griffiths, and the Agents-General reviewed Australian members of the officers' cadet training corps at Cambridge, where the Australians are billeted at colleges. Three hundred and eleven paraded. It was announced that 1500 Australians had qualified as officers in the Cambridge and Oxford corps. It was the intention to reduce the number of cadets, owing to the plethora of officers and diminished reinforcements. Australian instructors gradually were superseding British instructors. Major-General M'Cay presented 56 Distinguished Conduct and Military Medals for valour in France and Flanders.

Mr. Fisher addressed the cadets, and congratulated them on their privilege of training at these historic seats of learning. He hoped they would acquire fitness for the future defence of the youngest and freest Commonwealth in the world.

ILLICIT GOLD BUYING.

AN INDIAN'S BANKRUPTCY.

LONDON, Jan. 26.

A report from Johannesburg says the insolvency of an Indian dealer revealed enormous illicit purchases of gold, the debtor admitting that he lived by this means. His books showed that the receipts for a single month were £300,000. The debtor kept three accounts in separate banks. It is surmised that the gold was sent mainly to India. It is not yet clear how he became insolvent. There is no legal proof that the debtor offended criminally.

OBITUARY.

LONDON, Jan. 26.

The death is announced of Sir Alexander Rendell, the distinguished engineer, aged 89. He had been consulting engineer to the India Office since 1874.

CHAFF MILL DESTROYED.

ADELAIDE, Sunday.

A chaff mill owned by Mr. E. Ryan and Son, situated at Plympton South, near Adelaide, was totally destroyed by fire this morning. There were large stocks of hay, chaff, wood, oats, and wheat on the premises. All were destroyed. Several pieces of valuable machinery were also destroyed. The origin of the fire is unknown. The damage is estimated at about £1000.

ALLEGED THEFT OF SHEEP.

GLEN INNES, Sunday.

At the police court Michael Joseph Hanley, of Glencoe, was committed for trial to the Glen Innes Court of Quarter Sessions on February 5 on two charges of stealing 12 sheep, the property of Messrs. Woods Bros., of Glencoe, and six sheep, the property of Mr. Finlay M'Innes, of Maronan Station, Glencoe.

SULPHATE OF AMMONIA

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

By an order gazetted on Friday the maximum prices to be charged for sulphate of ammonia in New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, Western Australia, and Tasmania were fixed at £18 a ton wholesale and £20 a ton retail. In Queensland prices were fixed at £19 and £21, respectively.

A.J.C. ANNIVERSARY MEETING.

The Anniversary meeting of the Australian Jockey Club was brought to a close at Randwick on Saturday afternoon in fine, bright, and pleasant weather conditions, and, despite counter-attractions, there was a muster of over 27,000 to witness the sport—a larger gathering than that of the corresponding reunion last year. It was a thoroughly representative assemblage, and included a large number of men in khaki, many of whom have already "done their bit" on the battlefields of Europe and Asia, and others who have yet to witness the grim reality of warfare. The reserves and lawns were covered with bright verdure, and Mr. L. De Groen's Vice-regal concert band filled in the intervals between the races with selections of popular music.

THE DETAILS.

SECOND HURDLE RACE, a handicap sweepstakes of 2 sovs, with 200 sovs added; the second horse 40 sovs, and the third 20 sovs from the prize. About 2m.

(338) Mr. J. D. Little's b g Basil K., by Pompous (imp.)—Carlotta, aged, 10st 10lb (J. Graham) 1
(349) Mr. W. Stafford's br g Jack Rice, by Rice (imp.)—Explain, aged, 13st 4lb (F. Moore) 2
(531) Mr. R. M. Carter's b g Dood, by Patronus—Wavelet, aged, 9st 5lb (J. Onions) 3

Other starters: (108) Plymouth, 11st (W. Baker); (606) Mulgawillah, 10st 8lb (J. Maxwell); (4) Sir Zillah, 9st 1½lb, inc. 1½lb over (J. Horsted); (117) Lightning Dream, 9st 2lb, inc. 2lb over (J. Collitt); (34) Master Hawthorn, 9st (J. Clifton).

Betting: 2 to 1 v Mulgawillah, 4 to 1 each v Jack Rice, Dood, and Basil K., 12 to 1 v Lightning Dream, 20 to 1 each v the others.

Investments.—Paddock, £1063/10/. Divs. for 10/: £2/2/ and 13/6. Leger, £421/5/. Divs. for 5/: £1/2/ and 6/6. Flat, £238. Divs. for 5/: £1/3/ and 6/6.

They left together, and Sir Zillah taking up the running crossed the first obstacle, closely followed by Lightning Dream and Jack Rice, with Plymouth last. Without material change they turned into the straight and came down the running, and Sir Zillah flew the hurdle near the judge's box just clear from Lightning Dream, who was three lengths in advance of Basil K. and Dood, with Jack Rice and Mulgawillah next, and Plymouth still in the rear. As they turned out of the straight Lightning Dream ranged up alongside Sir Zillah, and the pair raced along the side a couple of lengths in front of Basil K. and Dood, with Jack Rice at the head of the others; but ere they reached the mile post Lightning Dream shook off Sir Zillah, and passed that point three lengths from Dood, after whom came Sir Zillah, Basil K., Mulgawillah, and Jack Rice, with Plymouth still last. Racing along the back stretch Lightning Dream increased his advantage to five lengths from Basil K. and Dood, but the leader came back to his field at the six furlongs post, inside of which he was headed by Basil K., who led past the five furlongs post, but at the end of the next furlong was joined by Dood, the pair being five lengths clear from Mulgawillah and Jack Rice, the former of whom hit and lost some ground. Basil K. shook off Dood as they rounded the bend and turned for home, with Dood and Jack Rice in hot pursuit. Basil K. and Dood flew the last obstacle, with Jack Rice at their heels, but inside the half-distance the topweight closed on the leaders, and a great finish resulted in a half-neck win for Basil K. from Jack Rice, with Dood a neck away. Mulgawillah was eight lengths off fourth, with Master Hawthorn at his heels; Lightning Dream was at the tail of the main body, while Plymouth and Sir Zillah straggled in. Time, 3m 46s.

FLYING HANDICAP, a sweepstakes of 6 sovs, with 300 sovs added; second horse 60 sovs, and the third 30 sovs from the prize. 6f.

(798) Mr. W. Booth's br m Eulacre, by Linacre (imp)—Eulas, 4yrs, 8st 4lb (P. Brown) 1
(312) Messrs. H. Main and E.A.M. Merewether's ch m Hem, by Featherstitch (imp)—Suffer (imp), 4yrs, all, 7lb, carr. 8st 11lb (W. Hill) 2
(380) Mr. "J. Baron's" ch f Princess Winifred, by Prince Foote—Sweet Cup, 3yrs, 7st 10lb (C. Barden) 3

Other starters: (686) Bonnie Plume, 9st 6lb (F. Foley); (240) The Tuck, 9st 4lb (W. Swanson); (125) Delinacre, all, 7lb, carr. 8st 4lb (W. O'Neill); (490) Rosedell, 8st 6lb (R. Brennan); (311) Tasman's Isle, all, 7lb, carr. 7st (G. Hanna); (267) Sornette, 7st 2lb (P. O'Sullivan); (58) Ready Aye Ready, 7st 2lb (W. Crockett).

Betting: 5 to 2 v Eulacre, 3 to 1 v Bonnie Plume, 6 to 1 v Rosedell, 10 to 1 v Tasman's Isle, 12 to 1 each v The Tuck and Hem, 16 to 1 v Princess Winifred, 20 to 1 each v the others.

Investments: Paddock, £1725/10/. Divs., £1/8/6 and £1/16/. Leger, £653/15/. Divs., 15/6 and 17/. Flat: £350/15/. Divs., 16/6 and £1.

From a good despatch Rosedell, Bonnie Plume, and Princess Winifred were the first to break the line, while The Tuck was last. As they neared the end of the first furlong, Ready Aye Ready shot to the front and passed that point a couple of lengths from Hem, Eulacre and Bonnie Plume, with Rosedell whipping in, and so they rattled past the half-mile post. Coming round the bend Ready Aye Ready had Eulacre at his girths, and he was closely pursued by Sornette, Bonnie Plume, Hem, and The Tuck. Ready Aye Ready turned for home closely attended by Sornette, Eulacre, Hem, and Princess Winifred; but when they reached the distance Eulacre and Princess Winifred ran past the tiring Ready Aye Ready, and coming on, Eulacre won by a length from Hem, who cut Princess Winifred out of second money by a neck. Rosedell was close up fourth, and was succeeded by The Tuck; then after a gap of four lengths came Bonnie Plume, while the last to pass the post were Tasman's Isle and Delinacre. Time 1m 14½s.

PHILLIP STAKES (for maiden two-years-old).—A handicap sweepstakes of 6 sovs., with 300 sovs. added: second horse 60 sovs., and the third 30 sovs. from the prize. 5f.

(770) Mr. J. Y. Black's br c Woorawa, by Charlemagne II. (imp.)—Gaelic Lass, 9st 7lb (A. Wood) 1
(694) Mr. J. N. Hart's br c Zanatello, by Varco (imp.)—Bel Sorel, 7st 5lb (F. Foley) 2
(540) Messrs. W. and F. A. Moses' ch f Military Cross, by St. Alwyne (imp.)—Diploma, 7st 6lb (F. Dempsey) 3

Other starters: (105) Best Steel, 8st, inc. 2lb over (W. McLachlan); (40) Royal Malt, 7st 9lb (W. Hibberd); (647) Waterproof, 7st 7lb (N. Russell); (406) Princess Clara, 7st 6lb (C. Barden); (160) Nulgarra, 7st 6lb (J. Townsend); (46) Jam Tart, 7st (W. Hill); (144) Camouflage, 6st 12lb (A. Scott).

Betting: 3 to 1 v Woorawa, 7 to 2 v Military Cross, 5 to 1 each v Waterproof and Zanatello, 8 to 1 v Princess Clara, 14 to 1 v Nulgarra, 20 to 1 each v the others.

Investments.—Paddock, £1661. Dividends, £1/8/6 and 15/6. Leger, £696/10/. Dividends, 13/6 and 8/. Flat, £415/5/. Dividends, 12/6 and 8/.

Zanatello and Military Cross moved off in front, and at the half-mile post Zanatello was still leading from Best Steel, Camouflage, Nulgarra, and Military Cross. Without material change they came round the bend and into the straight, where Woorawa was showing prominently on the outside. Zanatello was still in front at the distance from Camouflage Woorawa, and Military Cross, but at the half distance Woorawa and Zanatello were battling it out in advance of Camouflage and Military Cross. A little further on Woorawa got his head in front and won by half a length from Zanatello, with Military Cross two and a half lengths away, and a head in front of Camouflage, who was followed by Princess Clara and Waterproof, while the last to pass the post were Royal Malt and Jam Tart. Time, 1m 2½s.

NOVICE HANDICAP, a sweepstakes of 6 sovs, with 300 sovs added; second horse 60 sovs, and the third 30 sovs from the prize. 1m.

(182) Mr. J. Brown's br f Almorist, by Charlemagne II. (imp.)—Almora, 3yrs, set, all, 5lb, carr. 7st 9lb (N. Hobbs) 1
(385) Mr. "Ernest Berkley's" b or br g Burnham, by Dorchester—Altona, 3yrs, 7st 10lb, all, 7lb, carr. 7st 3lb (F. Gray) 2
(688) Mr. F. Williams' b g Harcliff, by St. Alwyne (imp.)—Nun Nicer (imp.), 4yrs, 7st 8lb, all, 7lb, carr. 7st 1lb (H. Ellem) 3

Other starters: (186) Earlsan, 9st 5lb, all, 7lb, carr. 8st 12lb (E. Burgess); (216) Flambard, 9st 2lb, all, 7lb, carr. 8st 8lb (G. Davies); (687) Tonio, 8st 3lb, all, 7lb, carr. 7st 10lb (G. Carter); (213) Tresfoil, 8st, all, 5lb, carr. 7st 9lb (A. Scott); (114) Krithia, 7st 10lb, all, 5lb, carr. 7st 5lb (A. Keys); (323) Tom Gallon, 7st 10lb, all, 7lb, carr. 7st 3lb (A. Sleigh); (459) Varico, 7st 8lb, all, 7lb, carr. 7st 1lb (W. Hill); (36) Sir Douglas, 7st 4lb, all, 7lb, carr. 6st 13lb, inc. 2lb over (G. Hanna); (35) Gold Tress, 7st, all, 7lb, carr. 6st 8lb, inc. 1lb over (S. Watmough); (68) Tressadia, 7st, all, 7lb, carr. 6st 7lb (S. Breasley).

Betting: 9 to 2 each v Tonio and Varico, 5 to 1 v Harcliff, 7 to 1 v Tom Gallon, 8 to 1 v Tresfoil, 10 to 1 v Flambard, 12 to 1 each v Almorist and Earlsan, 14 to 1 v Burnham, 20 to 1 each v Krithia and the others.

Investments.—Paddock, £1543/10/. Divs.: £4/7/ and £1/14/6. Leger, £624/5/. Divs.: £3/2/ and £1/1/. Flat, £380/10/. Divs., £3/8/6 and £1/7/.

Krithia, Earl San, and Tonio were smartest off the mark, and Tonio led past the seven-furlongs post from Krithia and Earlsan, while the others were whipped in by Golden Tress. In that order they ran to the five-furlongs post, where Earlsan joined issue with Tonio, and the pair were a couple of lengths in advance of Krithia and Harcliff, with Golden Tress still in the rear. Without change they came past the half-mile post, and round the bend, and Tonio turned for home with a slight advantage from Krithia and Earlsan, and Harcliff at the head of the others. Harcliff joined issue with Tonio at the distance, where Varico and Burnham joined the leading division, and Almorist was coming fast on the outside. Tonio, Harcliff, Burnham, and Almorist were fighting it out at the half-distance, and Almorist, finishing strongest, won by a head from Burnham, who had Harcliff at his girths. Tonio was half a length off fourth, with Varico and Krithia next at the head of a big bunch whipped in by Sir Douglas and Gold Tress. Time, 1m 40s.

ANNIVERSARY HANDICAP.—A sweepstakes of 10 sovs, 1000 sovs. added. Second horse 200 sovs., and third horse 100 sovs. from the prize. 1½m.

Messrs. W. M. Borthwick and J. Laycock's ch m Kennaquhair, by Kenilworth—Calluna, 5yrs, 7st 5lb (inc. 7lb extra (F. Dempsey) 1
Mr. H. J. Robinson's br h Mehi King, by Mountain King——Lady Mehi, 4yrs, 8st 2lb (W. McLachlan) 2
Messrs. "A. Trevelyan" and M. Thompson's ch m Wedding Day, by Antonio (imp.)—Wedding Present (imp.), 5yrs, 7st 10lb (L. A. Walker) 3

Other starters: Chantemerle (imp.), 9st 4lb (P. Brown); Cisco, 8st 13lb (A. Wood); Ulva's Isle, 8st 10lb (F. Foley); Hitachi, 8st 6lb (A. Hyland); Norbury, 8st 1lb (C. Barden); Scoutmaster, 7st 8lb, inc. 6lb over (P. Maher); Lady Liege, 7st 2lb (A. Scott); Dollar Dictator, 6st 13lb, inc. 1lb over (A. Twyman); Phast Boy, 7st 2lb, inc. 4lb over (P. O'Sullivan); The Christian Brother, 6st 10lb (W. Crockett).

Betting: 9 to 4 v Kennaquhair, 9 to 2 v Hitachi, 10 to 1 v Mehi King, 12 to 1 each v Cisco, Ulva's Isle, and The Christian Brother, 14 to 1 v Chantemerle, 20 to 1 each v Norbury, Wedding Day, and Lady Liege, 50 to 1 each v Scoutmaster, Dollar Dictator, and Phast Boy.

Investments: Paddock, £2445/10/. Dividends, £1 7s 6d and £1 7s 6d. Leger, £1114/10/. Dividends, 18/6 and 12/6. Flat, £626. Dividends, 14/ and 13/.

They were sent away in line, which was soon broken by Hitachi and The Christian Brother, and Hitachi rattled past the judge's box closely followed by Cisco, Dollar Dictator, Chantemerle, Lady Liege, and the favourite, with Ulva's Isle last. Hitachi turned out of the straight with Chantemerle, Lady Liege, Cisco, Dollar Dictator, The Christian Brother, and Scoutmaster in pursuit, and without change they raced along the side; but when they reached the mile post Chantemerle ranged up alongside Hitachi, the pair being a length and a half in advance of Cisco, Scoutmaster, and Lady Liege, who were a couple of lengths in front of Scoutmaster, Dollar Dictator, the favourite, Mehi King, Wedding Day, The Christian Brother, and Norbury, with Phast Boy and Ulva's Isle in the rear. They raced past the seven furlongs post without alteration, but as they neared the end of the next furlong Hitachi retired, and his place alongside Chantemerle was taken by Lady Liege, who was succeeded by Hitachi, Scoutmaster, Dollar Dictator, and Kennaquhair. A little further on Lady Liege shook off Chantemerle, and passing the five furlongs post the pair were separated by three lengths, with Kennaquhair, Scoutmaster, and Cisco close up, but Lady Liege came back to her field as they came past the half-mile post, and rounding the bend the daughter of Baniskin beat a retreat, leaving Kennaquhair to come round the bend and into the straight, closely followed by Cisco, Mehi King, Chantemerle, and Hitachi, with Norbury close, and followed by Wedding Day. Kennaquhair was not afterwards troubled, and coming on won comfortably by a length from Mehi King, who beat Wedding Day by a head for second place. Ulva's Isle was a head away fourth, closely attended by Chantemerle. The Christian Brother, Phast Boy, Cisco, and Hitachi, while Lady Liege and Dollar Dictator were the last to get home. Time, 2m 33½s.

SECOND NURSERY HANDICAP, a sweepstakes of 6 sovs, with 300 sovs added; for two-years-old; second horse 60 sovs, and the third 30 sovs from the prize, 5½f.

(321) Mr. W. Booth's ch f Slake, by Sands of the Orient (imp.)—Damera, 8st 8lb (L. A. Walker) 1
(566) Mr. W. Kelso's ch c Peat, by Son of the Marsh (imp.)—Morner, 8st 5lb (J. Townsend) .. 2
(535) Mr. John McDonald's blk f Constellation, by White Star (imp.)—Lady Wallace, 8st 8lb (R. Brennan) 3

Other starters: (918) Glittering Gold, 9st (F. Foley); (107) Galileo, 8st (W. Manning); (45) Private King, 7st 6lb (W. Hibberd); (72) Pax, 7st 6lb (D. O'Connor).

Betting: 5 to 4 v Glittering Gold, 7 to 2 v Peat, 4 to 1 v Constellation, 5 to 1 v Slake, 20 to 1 each of the others.

Investments.—Paddock, £1282. Divs.: £2/15/ and 10/. Leger, £581/10/. Divs.: 19/ and 6/. Flat, £318 [illegible]. Divs.: £1 and 6/6.

Glittering Gold made play from Slake and Constellation, but when the five-furlong post was reached, Constellation was in charge, with Glittering Gold at her girths, and Slake a length away at the head of the others, who were whipped in by Galileo. That order was preserved past the half-mile post, and Constellation came round the bend with Glittering Gold at her girths, Slake was a couple of lengths away, followed by Private King and Pax. Constellation swung into line for home, with Glittering Gold at her heels, and closely succeeded by Slake and Peat. At the distance Slake ran up next to Constellation, whom she cut down at the half-distance, and, coming on, won by two lengths from Peat, who was a length and a half in advance of Constellation. Glittering Gold was a length away fourth, with Private King a slimmer distance off; Pax at the tail of the main body, and Galileo 20 lengths off last. Time, 1m 9½s.

HIGH-WEIGHT HANDICAP, a sweepstakes of 6 sovs., with 300 sovs. added: second horse 60 sovs. and the third 30 sovs. from the prize. 1m.

(296) Mr. "George Marlow's" blk m Trinobantes (imp.), aged, 9st 7lb (W. Barnett) 1

(153). Mr. E. A. Haley's blk c Brian, by Prudent King (imp.)—Adele, 3yrs., all. 7lb, car. 8st 6lb (G. Davies) 3

Other starters: (241) Dear Laddie, 10st 8lb (W. Manning); (537) Lord Nagar, 10st 6lb (J. Pike); (138) Willow Green, 10st 2lb (F. Sutherland); (329) Gallipoli, 9st 12lb (L. A. Walker); (91) Louvetier (imp.), 9st 12lb (W. Baker); (211) Red Pennant, 9st 10lb (W. M'Lachlan); (458) Franzac, 9st 5lb (F. Dempsey); (221) Mafioso, 8st 12lb (J. Maxwell); (467) Crooked Blaze, 8st 7lb (W. Osborne).

Betting: 5 to 4 v Rebus, 6 to 1 v Lord Nagar, 8 to 1 each v Dear Laddie and Franzac, 10 to 1 v Trinobantes, 12 to 1 each v Willow Green and Gallipoli, 15 to 1 v Brian, 20 to 1 each v the others.

Investments: Paddock, £1894/10/. Divs., £4/5/ and 7/6. Leger, £806/10/. Divs., £1/17/6 and 4/6. Flat, £439. Divs., £2/2/ and 4/.

Louvetier and Brian moved off in front, and, at the end of a furlong, Louvetier was two lengths in front of Brian and Mafioso, and with Dear Laddie at the head of the others; and so they raced along the back to the half-mile post, where Brian ranged up alongside Louvetier, and the pair were two lengths in advance of Franzac, Mafioso, and Lord Nagar. Without change they swept round the bend and into the straight, where Trinobantes joined the leading division. At the distance Louvetier had a slight advantage from Brian. Mafioso, Trinobantes, Franzac, and Rebus, and the finish was fought out by Trinobantes and Rebus, the former of whom won by a head, with Brian two lengths away third; then after a gap of two lengths came Red Pennant, Willow Green, Franzac, Mafioso, Louvetier, and Gallipoli, with Dear Laddie last. Time, 1m 39½s.

SHIPBUILDING.

PREMIER'S CRITICISM.

The Premier yesterday made a statement respecting shipbuilding, accusing the Federal Government with having slumbered upon the subject for a period of six months, and with rousing itself now just in time to throw into confusion the practical steps which had been taken by the State authorities to push it forward. Mr. Holman reviewed the steps which had been taken by the State Government eight and a half months ago, when it first received official intimation from the Commonwealth Government of its intention to build ships, and asserted that when the State had fulfilled all its obligations in the matter there was dead silence from the Commonwealth.

When the Broken Hill Proprietary Company had come to an arrangement to lease Walsh Island and undertake the construction of four steel steamers of 5000 tons each, the Commonwealth Government took action. Continuing, Mr. Holman said "the Broken Hill Proprietary Company is able and willing to roll the necessary steel plates; it can produce the other steel necessary, and it is in a position at any moment to begin the building of four steel ships from Australian resources.

"It appears, however, that the Federal Government has ordered its steel plates from America, and it would seem to be more concerned in the establishment of a big Federal shipbuilding department than in the practical work of using all available resources for the turning out of ships from local material.

"The only definite scheme for shipbuilding in this State was arranged by my colleagues with the Broken Hill Proprietary Company. Whether the Commonwealth Government wants to prevent four steel ships being built in this State; whether it intends to build more than one ship; or whether it has any definite plans, we have not the faintest idea. Beyond the few desultory inquiries regarding our facilities for carrying out the work outlined by me now, our Cabinet has never been informed as to what the Federal authorities are doing or propose to do. Just at a critical time when something practical was about to be started by this State the whole thing is again held up by the Federal Government.

"The Federal authorities are now commencing entirely new propositions as to the taking over of Walsh Island. Until a few days ago it had never been suggested that this should be done."

THREE SONS KILLED.

The men in the running sheds at Eveleigh last week presented Mr. George Douglas, foreman of the sheds, with portraits in oils of his three sons, the youngest of whom was 18 years of age, who have died on active service. Among the large gathering were several representative railway officers.

KENSINGTON RACES.

SUCCESS OF HALSTON AND LOUD REPORT.

Pony and galloway races were held by the Kensington Racing Club at Kensington on Saturday. The weather was fine, and the attendance very large, though the A.J.C. was also racing alongside. Both the paddock and leger stands were uncomfortably packed. In view of the large entries, the events had to be run in divisions, no fewer than 14 races being run off. In the second division of the Maiden Handicap, Sindy gave an exhibition of pig-rooting. He unseated his rider, Everett, before he left the enclosure, and he was so shaken that another rider had to be obtained. Stewart mounted Sindy on the course and the horse immediately started bucking, going to the post the reverse way. Sindy finished last, and the rider was so distressed that he collapsed and had to be assisted to the jockeys' room. The principal race, the Kensington Cup, was run in three divisions, the first division being won by Loud Report, the second by Canley (who paid £24 12/ on the totalisator for 10/ invested), and the third by Oafield. Investments on the totalisator were brisk, the sum of £7019 going through, of which £4041/10/ went through the machine in the paddock, and £2977/10/ through the totalisator in the leger. Details:—

THE BANK OF VICTORIA.

For the six months ended December 31 the Bank of Victoria showed a net profit of £58,190, an increase of £2406 over the corresponding term of 1916. Deposits advanced by £698,000 to £6,944,920, and advances declined by £311,000 to £6,081,242. Dividends on both preference and ordinary shares, at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, the same as for the two preceding terms, absorb £44,340, and £2000 is allocated to the officers' provident fund. With the sum brought forward there remained £35,808, of which £25,000 is transferred to the reserve fund, making it £450,000, leaving a balance of £10,508 to be carried forward.

A TROUBLED TAXPAYER.

"Hard Hit" (Out Back) writes:—

Sir,—War-time profit tax papers are overdue. How many filled in their own forms? The heaping up of tax returns means more money to the solicitors, and as many of our members of Parliament are lawyers that ought to seem all right to them. It is doctors and lawyers who seem to come off best to-day, for the public pays heavily for ignorance. Let us hope that the rising generation will know how to save much, and that children leaving school will be educated in the art of making out taxation returns. For myself, with a large family, it costs me over £10 to fill in forms. Surely it is possible to devise forms which the average man or woman in business or on the land can fill in without having to pay for assistance. We hear too much of economy, while the Government pounces down on our unfortunate ignorance. I do not know of a family which fills in its own tax papers. On the land not one man in a hundred fills in his own return.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Accounts opened in the savings department of the Commonwealth Bank last week numbered 2009. Withdrawals exceeded deposits by £5337. Accounts open on January 21 numbered 387,658, and depositors' balances amounted to £13,592,280.

The issue to shareholders of 15,000 ordinary shares in the Stanmore Preserving Company has been considerably oversubscribed.

NEWCASTLE STEEL WORKS.

The Broken Hill Proprietary Company's report for the four weeks ended January 9 states:—The blast furnace produced 9866 tons of pigiron; the construction of the No. 2 furnace is proceeding as speedily as possible. The open hearth produced 15,573 tons of steel, and the blooming mill produced 13,919 tons. Satisfactory work has been done at the rail mill, the production totalling 9468 tons. The 18in merchant mill produced 2170 tons and the 12in and 8in mills 368 tons. The steel foundry is working to its full capacity, and is accomplishing good work.

BREADSTUFFS.

THE HARVESTS GUARANTEED.

Speaking in the House of Representatives on Friday Mr. Hughes, Prime Minister, said that the Ministry had given a guarantee to the primary producers in regard to this year's harvest and the next, and in fulfilment of that guarantee had already arranged for the payment of 3/ a bushel on the present harvest. He regretted to say that the Wheat Board had been unable to effect a sale of the current harvest, and, although it would spare no effort to make a satisfactory sale, he thought that it was only right that he should say that as far as one could see at the present moment there was no immediate prospect of being able to do so. That, of course, would not affect the guarantees which had been given, for they stood on their own basis, and were independent of any sale being effected.

The Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Tudor): How much did you guarantee?

Mr. Hughes: 4/ a bushel.

MINING.

NOTES.

Some time ago the Red Hill gold mine, which was compelled to close down owing to the scarcity of water, recently acquired access to the water at Tipping's dam, situated north of Gulgong. The company is spending £1000 in laying down a line of pipes from the mine to the dam, and the survey for this purpose has already been completed. Mr. Johnson, manager of the mine, returned to Gulgong a few days ago, and is now engaged in work preparatory to the mining operations being resumed.—Gulgong correspondent.

The high price of tin has induced many miners in the Glen Innes district to devote their attention solely to the winning of stream tin, with profitable results. At Bald Nob, on the Grafton road, there are several parties getting out very payable quantities.

EDNA MAY DEEP LEVELS COMPANY.

The half-yearly report of the Edna May Deep Levels Company for the period ended November 30 last shows that £21,523 was realised from the sale of gold, as well as £2908 from calls and £3230 from the sale of reserved shares. The total expenditure was £18,000, and at the end of the term the company's credit bank balances amounted to £11,398. The first dividend of /6 per share has been paid, and the directors anticipate that a monthly dividend of /6 will be maintained while the mine is being opened up and the erection of plant completed. The total length of ore proved at the 566ft level is 180ft, by an average width of 15ft, and the ore is valued at £5/8/ per ton over plates, with sands valued at 5dwt. From this level 3760 tons yielded 5450oz gold, and the sands are valued at 20/ per ton. The north winze is down 65ft, the value of the ore being 2oz. Regarding the future development of the mine, the report states that it is not proposed to sink the main shaft, but to use the south winze as a shaft for the next two levels until further information as to the trend and nature of the reef are disclosed. This winze, as well as the north winze, will be sunk to at least 250ft with all speed. The mine manager states that only 480 tons of ore was drawn from the 480ft level during the half-year, and there was an estimated balance of 9520 tons, valued at £2 a ton, and 8000 tons valued at £1 a ton, above the level. Between 566ft and 480ft he estimates that there is from 18,000 to 21,000 tons, worth over £4 a ton; and below the 566ft level he considers that a large tonnage can certainly be reckoned on. Until the next level is opened up the monthly tonnage will not be greater than 1000 tons, and the manager estimates that the grade will be approximately 25dwt a ton.

BODANGORA GOLD MINE.

From a total crushing of 3195 tons the Bodangora Gold-mining Company obtained gold of the value of £6852 during the half-year ended November 30, and a loss of £815 was sustained on working account. The ore reserves are gradually becoming depleted, and the future of the company depends on the way the reef opens up at the Horseshoe and South Mitchell's shafts. The ore reserves are given as follow:—Dick's shaft, 2670 tons, approximate recoverable value 38/ a ton; Horseshoe shaft, 650 tons, 40/ a ton; Mitchell's South shaft, 1530 tons, 34/6 a ton.

BORING FOR PETROLEUM.

It is expected that actual drilling in connection with the boring for petroleum will start within the next four weeks. The place of operations is at Glenleigh Estate, about three miles from Penrith. The operations are being conducted on behalf of the Industrial Boring Company, the New South Wales rights having been secured on the Glenleigh and other estates in the vicinity. At present only one shaft will be sunk, but in the event of failure further boring will be attempted elsewhere. Mr. Guy Andrews, who is conducting the operations on behalf of the company, spent six weeks in a thorough examination of the Penrith district.

THE SCOTS' CHURCH.

In connection with an effort which is being made by the congregation of Scots Church to clear off a liability of £1500 which remains on the church property, special services were held at the church yesterday. In the course of the evening discourse some interesting historical facts were referred to by the Rev. Thomas Tait, M.A., B.D., the present minister, in his address on the glory of the Christian Church. Mr. Tait said that the history of Presbyterianism in Australia, particularly in its earlier stages, was very closely associated with the Scots Church, and its first minister, the Rev. Dr. John Dunmore Lang, was the most striking figure in the history of the Presbyterian Church in Australia. Although the Scots Church is the eldest metropolitan Presbyterian church in the Commonwealth, it was not the first church of that denomination established. There still stands at Portland Head, on the Hawkesbury River, the first Presbyterian edifice erected in 1809 by about a dozen Scottish families. The Scots church has only had four ministers in full charge during its history.

SURF FATALITY.

Knut Richard Lindwall, aged 25, a Swiss seaman, a member of a ship lying alongside the wheat wharf at Pyrmont, was drowned in the surf at Coogee yesterday.

Lindwall, accompanied by two companions, was bathing, when he became caught in the undertow. One of his companions endeavoured to go to his assistance, but was unable to get near him. Charles F. Riley, who resides in Amy-street, Erskineville, was near Lindwall, and attempted to hold him up until assistance arrived. Lindwall, however, began to struggle, and, clutching Riley by the neck, nearly drowned him. Riley became exhausted, and Lindwall sank under the water, but gripped in a death-hold Riley's leg. Riley had literally to fight for his life.

The life-savers arrived and rescued Riley, who had become unconscious. Lindwall's body was not recovered.

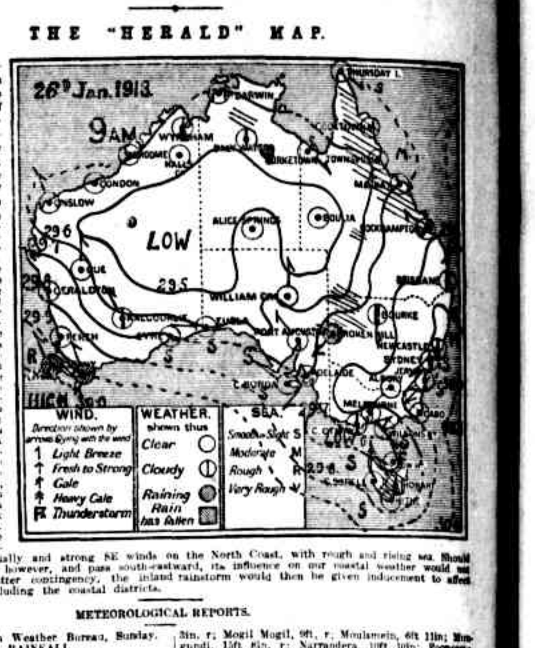
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



Practically no alteration has taken place in the pressure distribution over the mainland of Australia, for one continuous low pressure system, with a closed-curve centre, occupies all that area. If anything, the influence of the edge of the "high" in eastern New South Wales has weakened, thus permitting the further expansion of the unsettled conditions to coastal parts. Intensification of these conditions, however, has been interrupted to some extent by an important circumstance, responsible for the temporary increase of high pressure influence there, and thus deferred the rainy weather in the city, which was due on Saturday. The cause of this curious interference with the activity on the inland rain disturbance is traceable to the cyclone, which was situated between Norfolk Island and New Caledonia on Friday. Since then this has moved considerably south-westward, so that at 9 a.m. on Saturday it occupied a position between Norfolk and Lord Howe Islands. As a consequence, the isobars are now so arranged as to favour squally and strong SE winds on the North Coast, with rough and rising sea. Should the disturbance recurve, however, and pass south-eastward, its influence on our coastal weather would not be felt. With the latter contingency, the inland rainstorm would then be given inducement to affect the State generally, including the coastal districts.

SOLDIERS' FUNERALS.

In response to representations respecting the funeral expenses of deceased returned soldiers, Mr. Holman is in receipt of the following letter from the Prime Minister:—"I have the honour to inform you that my colleague the Minister for Repatriation, anticipating the issue of regulations when the Repatriation Act is proclaimed, and to meet present claims, has approved of the sum of £10 being allowed for funeral expenses in respect of deceased returned soldiers when the relations are in indigent circumstances. The several State War Councils have been advised in the above terms, and requested to debit such expenditure to the Repatriation Department."

DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

WAGGA, Sunday.

A shocking domestic tragedy occurred on Saturday morning, when Mrs. Adelina Boardman, the wife of a well-known businessman, cut her throat with a razor. Mr. Boardman entered the laundry and found his wife lying dead on the floor with a gaping wound in the throat, and a razor lying near the right hand. The wife was dressed only in a nightdress, which was covered with blood.

RUSSIAN CONSULATE ENDS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Russian consular office in Melbourne has been closed as from Saturday. The retiring Consul (Mr. D'Abaza) said on Saturday that four months ago he had received his salary and expenses in advance, and regarded his term of office as concluding on Saturday, no provision having been made for continuance. His official signature cannot now be obtained.

CRICKET.

WAR CHEST MATCH.

The International-Interstate match in aid of the War Chest Fund was continued at the Sydney Cricket Ground on Saturday in the presence of about 200 spectators.

At the conclusion of the first day's play the Interstate side had lost seven wickets for 394 runs, and the innings closed for 413. International in the first innings scored 276, to which Noble contributed 106 not out in brilliant style; and when the stumps were drawn Interstate in the second innings had lost two wickets for 114.

The match financially was a success. The gate returned £94/8/, the collecting boxes £20/12/, and the raffles £11/7/6. The money secured by the autograph book was £7/12/; and, in addition, the auctions and donations realised £25/13/6, making a total of £159/13/. The Association, after paying expenses, hopes to hand over to the War Chest £130, which with the amount given on War Chest Day will make a total of £400.

ANNIVERSARY REGATTA.

Four sailing and two rowing events were decided at the 82nd Anniversary Regatta on Saturday afternoon, in ideal weather. There was no flagship, and the races started and finished at Clark Island, and from that picturesque spot a big assemblage viewed the racing. The Kuligoa, which followed the 18-footers' handicap, also had a large number aboard. The officials were: Sailing: Judge, F. S. Adams; umpire, W. Anderson, 1st race, H. O. Dodd, skiffs, J. R. Turner, 16ft and under, G. Brennan, 6ft dinghies; starter, W. Hedge; record-keeper, E. J. Perkins; timekeepers, T. E. Lamus, T. L. Mulhall, and S. J. Keegan. Rowing: Umpire, J. W. Scott; starter and judge, J. M'Gregor; timekeeper, D. M'Lean; hon. secretary, N. J. M'Donald; joint hon. treasurers, Alfred G. Milson and Q. L. Deloitte; official secretary, J. W. Pickering. AMUSEMENTS.

"PARENTAGE."

The chief attraction at the Theatre Royal on Saturday night was the picture entitled "Parentage." The Theatre was packed to the utmost. The picture holds the attention of the audience from beginning to end, and it is a production of particular interest to adults. It depicts a home where a boy is treated harshly by his father, and, in consequence, when he attains manhood the worst side in his character predominates. Another home is also shown where a boy is welcomed by his parents and is treated with kindness. This boy when he grows to be a young man proves a blessing to his parents. The two young men become rivals in business, and also fall in love with the same girl. Of course the young man who has been reared in a refined home proves a success in life, and the other a failure. The picture will be screened each day and night this week.

ORGAN RECITAL.

There was a fair attendance at the Town Hall on Saturday night, when an interesting recital was given by the City organist, Mr. Ernest Truman. His numbers included Gounod's overture from "Polyeucte," Planquette's "Les Cloches de Corneville," "The Gondoliers," overture "Masaniello" (Auber), and "La Dame Blanche" (Boieldieu). Mr. Truman stated that the Saturday night recitals would be discontinued for a few weeks, as the Town Hall would be engaged in the meantime.

"THE REAL MISS PINKERTON."

Miss Agnes Chambers, as honorary organiser, announces that the Aborigines' Dramatic Club will on Saturday next appear in "The Real Miss Pinkerton," at St. James's Hall, with Mr. J. Clarence Lee as producer. Mr. Kenneth Hunt is to sing between the acts.

WOMEN'S HOSPITAL MATINEE.

The programme which is to be presented at the matinee in aid of the Women's Hospital to-morrow should ensure a crowded audience at the Tivoli. The announced features of the entertainment include the appearance of Mrs. T. H. Kelly in her playlet, "Swords and Tea," and a fashion parade. Miss Nellie Leach, the hon. organiser of the matinee, reports that nearly all the seats have been sold.

INVISIBLE BIFOCALS

Enable you to adjust your vision from near sight to distance, and the trouble of removing or awkwardly looking over your reading glasses to see objects even a few feet away, and free you from two separate pairs of glasses.

INVISIBLE BIFOCALS keep your eyes free from strain—the vision is corrected for all purposes. The two powers are ground on one glass—no seam, cement, or small piece stuck on. They cannot be distinguished from single-sight glasses.
